WERE OUT TO EXPLORE THE BIG, WIDE WORLD

Little Katherine Feidt Was Headed for Coleville.

ATLANTIC CITY FOR DAN

One Aged 5 and the Other 3—Skipped Away from Home When Parents were Not Looking—Were Found Along the Road About one Mile Away.

There were two of them. They planned a journey that was to be most wonderful. To them it meant nothing that their respective destinations were somewhat removed one from the other. They would, at least, start together on the journey and let fate do what it might. Hand in hand they started out into the big, wide world, and just as always happens in fairy tales, when night came both were safely back home receiving a sound lecture from a very stern father and being loved and wept over by a happy mother.

It was on Friday afternoon of last week that Katherine and Daniel Feidt, children of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Feidt, were playing happily and contentedly in the back yard of their home, in High Street. Katherine is about 5 years old, while Daniel is somewhere in the neighborhood of 3 years. Between them they talked of a great trip they would some day take. Daniel looked about him and proudly boasted that he would go to Atlantic City. Katherine, being two years older, didn't think that Atlantic City was quite exciting enough, so she announced that she would go to Coleville.

Just about the moment they were most deeply interested in the wonderful expeditions they were to take, somebody accidentally left open the yard gate. Two pairs of eager eyes spied the open gate at the same instant and without further ado the tourists were on their way. Mrs. Feidt was busily engaged in the home, satisfied that the children were playing in the yard where they were free from all danger. Dr. Feidt was busy with patients in his office and totally unconscious of the anxious and exciting hour or two in store for him. Just how long the children had been gone when their absence was discovered is unknown. Nevertheless, finally Mrs. Feidt became conscious of the fact that things were not so lively as usual and mother-like she started to investigate. She quickly discovered that Katherine and Daniel were missing.

It was but a few minutes before a general alarm was sounded. The fear-stricken parents learned from the other children that Daniel had been confiding of his desire to visit the seashore and that Katherine had visions of some day breaking the monotony of things by making a trip to Coleville. Dr. Feidt quickly secured his horse and buggy and drove post haste to Coleville, but could find no trace there of the two wanderers. He next explored the vicinity of Roopsburg, but residents in that section were unable to recall having seen any youthful tourists along the road. Others joined in the search but it seemed as if the earth had opened and swallowed up the two happy-faced children.

Sidney Keifer, who has been to both Coleville and Atlantic City and is satisfied to remain on the job at the American Lime and Stone Company plant, below Bellefonte, happened to notice two little tots trudging along the road nearby the quarries. The tender age of the children first attracted his attention. He took a second look and then he recognized the dusty little travelers as Katherine and Daniel Feidt. Rather suspecting what had happened he stopped them and inquired where they were going. Daniel was game. He announced that Atlantic City was his destination and that he was on his way. Katherine was equally determined. She cared little how far it might be, she was headed for Coleville. Neither child was the least bit awed by the strange scenes they had passed in the hour or so they had been on the road.

As gently as possible Mr. Keifer explained to Daniel that Atlantic City wasn't nearly so nice as some persons tried to make believe, while to Katherine he pointed out that big, woolly bears some times frightened little girls away out in Coleville. He suggested that about the nicest place in the world he knew of was up at Dr. Feidt's house and the children reluctantly agreed with him. Just about the time Dr. and Mrs. Feidt were in despair Mr. Keifer and the two little travelers hove into sight. All was again joy and happiness in the Feidt home.

As Katherine afterward explained the journey, they had traveled down High to Spring Street, out Spring to Lamb and across the railroad tracks at Crider's lumber yard office. They then tramped down Thomas Street, passed L. H. Gettig's home and then continued their journey under the Central Railroad of Penna. bridge. It wasn't long until they came to where Mr. Keifer was at work, when their adventure was suddenly brought to an end.

FIRE IN M. E. CHURCH

Defective Electric Light Wire Results in $1000 Damage.

Fire, supposedly caused by a defective electric light wire, on Tuesday afternoon resulted in damage amounting to upward of $1000 in the first floor, or Sunday school room, of the Bellefonte Methodist Episcopal church. Owing to its nature and the location of the fire, had it occurred at night instead of in the day time the handsome church edifice would have undoubtedly been destroyed. The damage by fire alone was comparatively small, but that by water made the wreckage of the first floor of the building almost complete.

Owing to the damaged condition of the building the Sunday school and church services will be held on Sunday, next, in Petriken hall, at the regular hours.

The blaze was first discovered shortly before 5 o'clock in the afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Ray, who happened to be walking in the street nearby the church. They called the attention of Mrs. G. R. Spigelmyer to the presence of smoke. She investigated and quickly discovered that the interior of the Sunday school room was on fire. An alarm was sounded and the fire companies were soon on the scene. It was necessary to chop through the flooring to get at the source of the blaze, which originated beneath an intersection of the floor and a side wall a few feet to the right from the superintendent's platform. A library containing many books was burned, as was also a section of wood facing on one wall and the frame-work of one entrance to the room. The flames also reached the ceiling and burned about half-way across one of the large wood girders. Apparently the fire had been eating its way unnoticed for several hours, for a large joist supporting the floor was completely burned through by the time the firemen were on the scene.

The damage caused by water was quite serious, every pane of glass in the big partition dividing the room into sections being shattered and the piano being completely ruined. Carpets, chairs and virtually everything in the room was drenched. The smoke which was so dense that the firemen could barely see to fight the flames, filled the entire building. To guard against any recurrence of the fire, watchmen were in charge of the building all night.

SPARKS TO REMAIN

President of State College Has No Thought of Resigning.

Rumors that Dr. E. E. Sparks contemplated resigning as president of State College were on Monday effectually put to rest by none other than Dr. Sparks. At the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of State College President Sparks announced that the rumors were groundless, that he had no thought of relinquishing the presidency of the institution and that it was his intention to remain.

Last week it was published in a college paper that Dr. Sparks had been tendered the presidency of Iowa University, his alma mater, and that the salary had been made $10,000 as an inducement to him to quit State College. This led to the rumor that Dr. Sparks would resign his present position, but that the honor which he sought was not the presidency of Iowa University but of Princeton, which has never elected a successor to Woodrow Wilson when the latter resigned to become Governor of New Jersey.

Dr. Sparks' denial of the rumors is accepted as final and is cause for jubilation among all friends of State College.

William Kopp Weds.

Willard Kopp, of Karthaus, and Miss Rhoda L. Korb, of Luthersburg, were married on June 1 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Korb. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kopp, of Karthaus, and is a splendid young man. The wedding ceremony was witnessed by the immediate relatives of the happy young couple, who included Mrs. W. J. Ropp and Misses Margaret and Myra Kopp, sisters of the groom. After their return from a wedding tour, visiting Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other points of interest, Mr. and Mrs. Kopp will go to Cherry-tree, where a handsomely furnished home awaits them.

Dr. Klump Resigns.

Dr. John Klump, formerly of Bellefonte but now located at Williamsport, was one of three physicians to resign from the board of managers of the Williamsport hospital on Monday night. Their resignation followed a stormy meeting of the managers at which a resolution was offered declaring that no person having an official or pecuniary interest in any other hospital or sanitarium should be elected or appointed to the medical or surgical staff of the Williamsport hospital.

STORM BREAKS CABLE STOPPING TOWN CLOCK

500-Pound Weight Drops Thirty-Five Feet in Court House Tower.

DAMAGE WAS SLIGHT

Every Time Piece in Court House Stopped When Violent Clap of Thunder Put Major Electrical Clock Temporarily Out of Service.

Monday afternoon's severe storm played some peculiar pranks, the oddest of which was the breaking of a steel cable and the sudden stopping of the Court House clock, supposedly caused by a violent clap of thunder. A 500-pound weight, attached to the cable which snapped, dropped a distance of about 35 feet, but fortunately provision had been made to guard against any such emergency and no damage resulted. The clock suddenly stopped at 4.23 P. M., which was just about the time the storm here was at its worst. The tower clock regulates all of the several smaller clocks throughout the Court House, so that when the big time piece stopped the hands of every other clock there were suddenly stilled.

The accident happened just at a time when F. P. Blair, who installed the new clock, had the electrical system working to a nicety. The big clock and also the smaller ones were so finely adjusted that they varied but a few seconds in a month. It is supposed that the steel cable holding the ponderous weight contained a defect unknown to the manufacturers or to Mr. Blair and that it was only revealed when the heavy clap of thunder mentioned came with the Monday afternoon storm. Fortunately no such defects developed in some of the other steel cables attached to heavier weights, any one of which had it fallen would have crashed through the ceiling and into the offices below. An accident of this kind happened some months ago in the Clinton County Court House, at Lock Haven. At that time a clock weight dropped through a ceiling and crashed into the floor of County Superintendent of Schools McCloskey's office. It landed so closely to Mr. McCloskey's desk that he would have undoubtedly been seriously injured, if not killed, had he been in his office at the time.

Splinter Caused Death.

Myers F. Dietrick, of Montandon, died from lockjaw on Monday in the Williamsport hospital. About one week ago he run a splinter into his foot. He thought nothing of the matter at the time. The foot finally became quite sore. By the time he was removed to the hospital blood poisoning had developed and he died in great agony.

A Fine Compliment.

"The Republican" appreciates a fine compliment conveyed in a letter from Mrs. Thomas Jones, a valued subscriber who resides at Scotland, South Dakota. In her letter, in which she enclosed a postal order advancing her subscription to February, 1913, Mrs. Jones says of "The Republican:" "I think I would be lost without the paper."

Williams Committee to Meet.

A meeting of the committee to arrange for the holding of the annual Williams reunion and picnic will be held on Saturday evening, next, at 8 o'clock, at the store of O. D. Eberts, at Martha. County Treasurer George G. Fink is chairman of the committe. He desires that every member of the committee be present.

New Train Schedule.

On Monday, June 19th, a new train schedule will go into effect on the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania, and train heretofore leaving Bellefonte for Mill Hall at 6:55 P. M. will depart at 6:45, or ten minutes earlier. There will be no change in the leaving time of the morning and afternoon trains.

Robbed Clothing Display.

Harry Baum's display of clothing and gents furnishings, in Meek's pool room, at State College, was too tempting for several thieves who last Thursday morning broke open the window and carried off several hundred dollars worth of goods. Thus far the guilty persons have not been apprehended.

Young Couple Wedded.

Charles E. Decker, of Lock Haven, and Miss Maude Bodel, of Flemington, were married in Lock Haven on Thursday evening of last week. The young couple will reside for the present at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Decker, in Lock Haven.

LITTLE THIEVES TOOK MRS. WALSH'S COLLARS

Theft was so Mysterious as to Baffle a Sherlock Holmes.

4 KERCHIEFS GO, TOO

Just When Neighborhood Was all Excited a Rain Storm Came Along and Solved the Problem—For the Rest You'll Have to Read the Story.

When Mrs. Julia Walsh several weeks ago missed a number of valuable lace collars and handkerchiefs, which had been placed out to dry upon the lawn, in the rear of her East High Street home, she naturally wondered as to the identity of the thieves. It was a case requiring the ingenuity of a Sherlock Holmes to solve, for none of the neighbors was suspected. Frank Naginey's little dog was under suspicion for a time but finally the likelihood that a dog would feast on such dainty little articles of feminine apparel was dismissed from Mrs. Walsh's mind.

Nevertheless, the fact remained undisputed that the collars and handkerchiefs had been placed upon the lawn and that they had suddenly and most mysteriously disappeared: The more Mrs. Walsh thought about it the more she was worried. Concluding to do some detective work on her own account, she placed a few rags upon the lawn, only to have them just as mysteriously vanish. So ghost-like were the thefts that the matter was getting upon the nerves of the neighbors. Captain Mingle and Dr. Dorworth and Frank Naginey were at no time under suspicion for Mrs. Walsh knew the stolen articles would be on no value to them. At the same time, all three were just as deeply interested in having the mystery solved as were the women folks in the neighborhood.

Monday afternoon's violent storm did what all the detectives in town failed to do. The storm tore down a part of a thick heavy vine growing about a second story porch in the rear of Dr. Dorworth's home. When the vine came down it dislodged a nest over which two pretty robins had guarded day and night for weeks past. In the nest, deftly woven into the rides, were seven of Mrs. Walsh's lace collars and two of the handkerchiefs. At last the mystery was solved. Two robins, fluttering excitedly overhead, seemed to be making a terrible fuss because they had been caught with stolen goods. Further examination of the nest, however, showed that this was but a small part of the reason for the robins to be so greatly worried. Inside the nest were two beautiful blue eggs, the little treasures which the robins had been guarding over so jealously when the storm came along and tore down their home. Mrs. Walsh said she didn't care for the lace collars and handkerchiefs anyway and all the neighbors helped to put up the nest to the very spot it had occupied before the storm. But it was of no use. The following morning the robins eggs were gone and so were the robins.

THOMAS IS IDENTIFIED

Man Killed in Illinois Formerly Worked Here for W. A. Lyon.

Chief of Police Dukeman has succeeded in unraveling the mystery as to the identity of the man killed on the railroad tracks last week near Joliet, Illinois. As told in "The Republican" last week a letter was found in the man's clothing, the same being addressed to David Thomas and mailed from Bellefonte on May 5. From numerous tatoo marks on the man's body he was identified by W. A. Lyon and his brother, Jacob, the Bellefonte butchers, as David Thomas, a man who had worked here for the Lyons about six years ago.

So far as may be learned Thomas was not a native of this section. He occasionally came to Bellefonte and while here made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Gamble Rice. Members of the Rice family frequently wrote letters to him and Mrs. Rice, when told of the unsigned letter found in the clothing worn by Thomas when he was killed, recalled that she had written to him early in May. According to Mrs. Rice the dead man was a son of Barton E. Thomas, of 921 West Pine Street, Shamokin, Pa.

COMMENCEMENT AT STATE

Chinese Minister Speaks—Barclay Makes Gift of $8000.

The address by Chang Yin Tang, Chinese Minister to the United States, and the announcement of several gifts, including one of $8,000 from former Congressman Charles F. Barclay, were features at the annual commencement exercises at State College this week. Delightful weather and the presence of a large crowd of former students and other friends of the institution contributed toward the success of what is always the biggest week in the college year.

Quite naturally, all attention centered upon Chang Yin Tang and the several others in his party of distinguished visitors, for whom a cottage was especially furnished and placed at their disposal during their stay at State College, from Monday morning until today. In the party were the Chinese Minister, Madame Chang, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chang, Misses Lili and Alice Chang, secretaries, interpreters and servants. The Chinese Minister is unable to speak a word of English, so his address to the students on Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, was read by his son. The subject was, "America's Part in the Rejuvenation of China."

The interesting feature was the conferring of the degree of Master of Arts upon the Chinese Minister. Degrees were also conferred upon Senator George E. Alter, of Pittsburg; Superior Court Judge George B. Orlady, of Huntingdon, and J. H. Isett, of Isett, Pa., who left college in 1861 two months before his graduation to join General Sherman's body guard.

The gift of $8,000 announced from Mr. Barclay will be used by devoting the interest to four freshmen scholarships for young men from Clarion County. Hutchinson & Barlow, proprietors of the Rose Valley farms, near Philadelphia, announced an annual gift of $300 to be known as the Rose Valley freshman scholarship.

The graduating class numbered about 233, among whom were the following from Centre County: J. M. Snyder, H. H. Armsby, W. S. Glenn, E. M. Webber and Misses M. E. Bailey, N. M. Bailey, B. A. Fye, M. G. Krebs and M. V. Snyder, of State College; Miss M. A. Lyon, of Bellefonte; H. L. Dougherty, of Lemont; S. I. Bechdel, of Howard; R. E. Thomas, of Milesburg, and G. M. Woods, of Pine Grove Mills.

MRS. MILES INJURED

Knocked Down in Street by Horse and Her Body Paralyzed.

As the result of a distressing accident, which happened on Sunday evening almost directly in front of her home, in Milesburg, Mrs. Oscar Miles is lying in a helpless condition, her body paralyzed and the attending physicians as yet unable to determine the exact nature of her injuries.

While attempting to cross the street, a few feet from her home, Mrs. Miles was knocked down by a passing team. It was after dark at the time of the accident. The person or persons driving the horse which knocked her down did not stop to ascertain the extent of her injuries or to render her assistance. Mrs. Miles was carried into her home and ever since has been lying on a lounge, her body in a helpless condition and the attending physicians waiting for some developments which may enable them to learn just where she is injured.

Mrs. Miles had no thought of impending danger as she stepped out of her home and started to walk across the street. It happened that the darkness covered the approach of two teams going in opposite directions. Mrs. Miles was not caught between the two teams. It is supposed that the driver of the team which knocked her down was trying to see the other team and thus failed to notice her as she stepped onto the road. Mrs. Miles did not become aware of the near approach of the horse until it was too late for her to escape. Almost before she could realize what had happened the horse was upon her and she was knocked prostrate to the ground. It is supposed that the force of the fall injured her spine, although of this the physicians are not sure.

Killed by Exploding Oil.

Oscar Norton, aged 25 years, his two-years-old daughter, and Miss Cora Davis, a visitor to the Norton home, were killed as the result of an explosion at West Moshannon on Sunday afternoon, last. Mr. Norton poured coal oil into a stove to hurry along the fire with which to cook supper. Mrs. Norton happened to be in another part of the house and thus escaped injury. Mr. Norton was a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Norton, of Houtzdale. Miss Davis was aged about 14 years.

2 AEROPLANE FLIGHTS AT BIG MOOSE PICNIC

Monster Crowd Expected at Hecla Park on Fourth of July.

TWO BASE BALL GAMES

Williamsport vs. Philipsburg in Morning Lock Haven vs. Jersey Shore in the Afternoon—Special Train to Coburn in Evening.

Two flights in a Curtis type aeroplane, two big baseball games between Williamsport and Philipsburg and Lock Haven and Jersey Shore, to say nothing of wheel-barrow races, sack races, running races, shooting matches—

The foregoing are but headliners in the program for the big Moose celebration at Hecla Park on the Fourth of July. Plans are under way to make the occasion not only a big reunion of lodges of the Loyal Order of Moose from Bellefonte, Lock Haven, Williamsport, Jersey Shore, Philipsburg and Renovo, but also a grand outing for the public. Everybody is cordially invited and all will be welcome on the grounds.

Warren J. Bauman, of Lock Haven, has signed a contract to have his Curtis type aeroplane on the grounds and to make two flights during the day. One exhibition will be in the morning, following the baseball game between Williamsport and Philipsburg, and the second flight will be in the afternoon, during or following the baseball game between Lock Haven and Renovo. A photograph of the aeroplane which Mr. Bauman will use for his exhibitions is shown on the big posters, hundreds of which have been sent out over the County and also to numerous surrounding towns.

The very best railroad service possible is being arranged to handle the enormous crowd which is expected to attend the big picnic. Just one of many features will be a special train over the Lewisburg and Montandon Railroad, arriving from Coburn in the morning and departing for Coburn at 7.30 o'clock in the evening. The Bellefonte band has been engaged for the occasion and Deitrick's orchestra will play in the dancing pavilion. Refreshments will be sold on the grounds. Everybody wishing to is invited to bring a basket, but for those who do not care to be burdened with a basket there will be all kinds of wholesome refreshments sold in the park.

The big event will be under the auspices of Bellefonte Lodge, No. 206, Loyal Order of Moose. Every visitor to the park may rest assured that nothing will be left undone to make the day a most delightful one and that the best of order will prevail.

Killed Monster Black Snake.

Snake stories are always looked upon with suspicion. Some times what gets into print is not exactly what actually happened. This is due, in some instances at least, to the fact that the snake is unable to give its version of the story. Some times the newspaper snake story isn't half so exciting as the facts warrant. Some times the story wouldn't fit well into the columns of a good, home newspaper. Once in a while there comes along a true snake story and this is one: On Decoration Day W. Scott Holter and four of his children drove out from their home near Howard across the Divide in search for wood juggles and chips. They were on their way home and Mr. Holter stopped to give the team a rest at the foot of a hill. The next instant one of his children called out that there was a large snake under the wagon. Mr. Holter investigated and found that the wagon wheel had stopped directly on top of a monster black snake. Held a prisoner by the weight of the wagon the snake was easily killed. Just to make sure his word wouldn't be doubted as to the size of the snake Mr. Holter carried it home with him. When measured it developed that the snake was 6 feet, 8 inches in length and that the largest part of the body was as thick as Mr. Holter's wrist. The editor of "The Republican" frankly confesses that he didn't see the snake, but Scott Holter's word goes at this office and we accordingly put down this snake story as all wool and a yard wide.

REMARKABLE SERMON

Preached in Chicago by Former Centre County Young Minister.

Rev. Elmer L. Williams, of Chicago, Ill., a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Williams, of Martha, and a brother of Commissioners' Clerk E. J. Williams, of Unionville, is rapidly forging to the front as one of the most prominent and successful ministers in the west. A sermon preached a short time ago by Mr. Williams was regarded as so remarkable and interesting that it was published in full in the Chicago "Inter Ocean," one of the leading newspapers in that city. The article follows:

A sermon startling in its vidid potrayal of the degradation endured by the "white slaves" of the North Side and calling upon the Christian men and women of Chicago to co-operate in a movement to make effective the recommendations of the report of the vice commission was delivered by the Rev. Elmer L. Williams at Grace Methodist Episcopal church.

"If Christ came to the lower North Side—what? or compassion and compulsion," was the theme from which the Rev. Mr. Williams spoke. He took as his texts:

"But when He saw the crowds He was moved with compassion for them, because they were distressed and harassed, like sheep without a shepherd."—Matt. ix., 30.

"Do not imagine that I have come to bring peace on the earth. I have come to bring, not peace but the sword."—Matt. x., 34.

"Jesus has made his third and last tour of Galilee," said the Rev. Mr. Williams. "Returning, he spent the night in prayer and on the following morning from the closest circle of followers He chose His twelve disciples. Coming down from the mountains, He saw the crowd. It is said of a certain philosopher that whenever he left his home he burst into a laugh, so foolish did men seem to him. But the Master was moved to tears at the sufferings and sins of men.

"This crowd, whose sick He had healed and from some of whom He had cast out demons, touched the heart of our Savior and awakened infinite sympathy. They were shepherdless. The leaders in religious things were devoted to a dead dogma, but were careless of the real needs of the people. All without were 'dogs' and to associate with them meant defilement and disgrace. Widows' houses were devoured and conscience rested easy, while mint, annise and cummin had to be carefully tithed to insure a good night's sleep. These poor sheep without were harassed and mauled by the enemy and no one seemed to care.

"If the crowd in this oriental land were in need of a shepherd, how much more the multitudes in the congested sections of our Western cities. If Christ came in the flesh to the lower North Side would we not see His eyes diffused with tears for the crowd and flash with wrath at the men who are harassing them and preying upon them?

"Would those who have influence or wealth or culture or religious connections or public office be included in His indignation? Would he be angry at ministers and policemen and judges and lawyers and property owners and saloon keepers and gamblers and keepers of places of shame. Some because they permitted the conditions to exist, some because they fed fat on the misery of others.

"Look at the literal hunger of the crowd. Physical hunger menaces the health and the morals of a large number of our young people. The report of the 'vice commission' tells us that the average wage of a working girl is $6 a week, and says: 'Poverty becomes a menace and a snare. One who has not beheld the struggle or come in personal contact with the tempted soul of the underpaid girl can never realize what the poverty of the city means to her. One who has never seen her bravely fighting against such fearful odds will never understand. A day's sickness or a week out of work are tragedies in her life. They mean trips to the pawnbrokers, meager dinners, a weakened will, often a plunge into the abyss which she so often escapes.'

"Those who employ these girls will say the law of supply and demand governs here as it does in pork and prunes, rags and rubber. In the life of shame where the demand is great and the supply small because so many girls are brave and true though starving, the average wage is $25 a week.

"If we could see the picture as a whole in many cases it would be like this: A hard-featured man at one end of the line doling out starvation wages to the army of girls while his idle son waits outside, shaking the golden dividends in the face of the girls to lure them to a life of shame. When we see great business houses producing millionaires at rapid rate while its employes get only a starvation wage the lesson needs no comment or diagram.

"In 'The House of Bondage,' a terrible book, full of blood and tears and cries and curses, the author paints a picture which is confirmed by the vice commission. A girl out of work goes on her way to seek employment, and here and there as she goes, and especially at evening, as she drags her weary body home to her garret, a sleek, polite, well fed young man meets her at the corner and tries to get on easy terms with her. And in her room, which she shares with another girl, she says: 'I fear I shall yield, because the struggle is so hard. He is so well fed, his cheeks are so plump, his clothes are so neat. No one cares.'

"And one night the other girl comes home and finds a note saying: 'Good-by, dear! I have given up the fight. Please do not look for me. I do not expect to see you again.' And the one left alone throws herself on the humble cot and sobs for her who is worse than dead, but for whom she has little blame because the battle has been so hard.

"It was said of Fantine by Victor Hugo 'She becomes marble when she became mud.' But however hard her heart may have become and however dull her sensibilities through the use of drugs and alcohol, any manly man must feel indignation as he follows the career of one of these fallen girls. She is still prey for the beast. Some man is sharing her wages.

"A broker gets larger rent for the room where she lives, a merchant more for the clothes she wears. At least eighteen lines of business take their toll from her income. But let us go to the police court, as the speaker frequently does. She is brought in. A cheap lawyer is there to defend her. The case is too clear for denial, so she pleads that the houses in that neighborhood are all of that type and that these places are as well conducted as any.

"The court orders a fine, and the girls confer, for, like the detectives, they usually go in pairs. Perhaps they need each other to inspire courage in their awful business, for many of them are children. If the fine can be paid they go out to the street to try to recoup.

"A ready friend may supply what is lacking and thereby mortage the future of the girl. It becomes necessary then for the girl to descend to the lowest villiany and make peace and share profits with all who assail her. The system of fines should be abolished and the owners of property, the agents and renters should be pursued with at least as much zeal as is shown in dogging the girl. We do not for one moment condone impurity, but we would like a square deal for a woman, no matter what her condition.

"But the cry goes up from the critic, 'Let us save the children?' Let us by all means, but how? Let us imagine a practical sheep grower building beautiful folds for his sheep and once or twice a week standing within and calling them in rather dignified tones to come in. If they did not come, but wandered away and were devoured by wolves, fell into pits, were driven off by thieves, imagine him saying: 'Well, it is their fault if they do not come; I am providing good shelter and wholesome food and it is their loss.' That is too great strain on the imagination. He would go out and shoot the wolves and fence or fill up the pits.

"Let us look at the conditions surrounding the children. A canvass of the theaters of Chicago reveals the fact that 32,000 children attend the shows of this city daily. Around the doors of these theaters evil-minded men loiter and little girls are taken to the show with the general consequence that a price is paid later. The ventilation was found to be bad, the darkness furnished a cover for immorality, crime was made attractive, many films were brutalizing and many plays vile and of most vulgar suggestion.

'Going into the dance halls after thorough investigation, they report that 86,000 young people attend the public dances on a single evening. The average age of the boys is from 16 to 18 years and of the girls from 14 to 16 years. These places are controlled by the saloons for the most part and five minutes is devoted to dancing and twenty minutes to drinking. The police on duty in 158 dance halls numbered 202, but in only seventeen cases did they render valuable service. The dances are immoral and the language befitting the gutter. Indecent liberties were taken with young girls without interference from the police or the other patrons.

"'Cursed be the day my people set foot in America.' Thus spoke a Persian minister to the preacher before you. We were brought together by one of the young men who speaks the Persian language who was fleeced in a barber shop on North Clark street last Friday evening. The young man was passing along the street when some one accosted him and said: 'Come in; I have something to show you?'

"Thinking he might wish to show him something Oriental, he entered and was conducted to the basement, where a game of dice was on and two or three thousand dollars were on the table. He was urged to risk a quarter and, losing it, was urged on and on until he lost $65 in the place.

"The speaker went to the police and got two officers and visited the place and found no one, though a boy in the place said the proprietor warned them all out only a few minutes before because the officers were coming. The next night two of our young men tried to enter and found the door to the basement guarded, and the man on duty inquired, 'Who sent you here?' Officers were asked for from the central station, but were not obtainable unless the place were designated.

"A warrant was issued for the place and a negro lawyer appeared for the defense. A jury trial was demanded and the trial is yet to be held. Meantime to the positive knowledge of the preacher the game goes merrily on. In this place alone a lot of foreign boys have last at least $3,000. Time forbids to tell of the vicious saloons, the vile roominghouses, the putrid hotels.

"If the Master's voice could be heard would it not be calling men to go out and purify this part of the town? The persecution is as certain, the self-sacrifices as real, the enemy as aggressive, the souls as precious, and the reward as sure as in the Master's days in the flesh. Then why delay? His program is not peace, but war. To compromise with the enemy is to play the traitor. 'He who loves business or pleasure or ease or offices or popularity more than Me is not worthy of me,' would be the modern way to put the Master's words.

"A review in a recent magazine uses the following language concerning the wasted water power of our rivers:

"'Water is our greatest resource. No other element in nature plays so useful a part in our existence. And yet, how we employ it! Every year we allow it to carry a billion tons of our richest soil out to sea. John L. Matthews, in his "The Conservation of Water," says that a hundred thousand men standing on the banks of the Mississippi with shovels and an unlimited supply of rich earth at hand and toiling twelve hours every day, 363 days in the year, could not throw into the Mississippi as much soil as the river annually carries into the Gulf of Mexico. Why should not we conserve this soil—and other soil—by draining our 76,000,000 acres of swamp land? Why should we not use the water to irrigate an equal acreage of desert land, to open new channels or navigation, to furnish 'white coal fuel'—that is to say, electricity? For in our rivers and streams there is still at least 50,000,000 horsepower. That would represent the equivalent of 650,000,000 tons of coal burned every year. We actually mine about 500,000,000 tons of coal annually. But we waste at least an equal amount in getting it out. Hence our undeveloped water power really represents the needless reduction in our total coal supply of no less than 1,000,000 tons a year. Something ought to be done.'

"But what of the wasted power of our churches! We are having great movements these days to interest men. Let us give the men we have an adequate program. Here is one part of it. Let us clean house. This does not mean that one man or group of men can do it, but let the brotherhoods of the whole city co-operate; the churches move together. The lodges should take a hand. The chivalry of the knights should be roused for womanhood and childhood.

"The woman's clubs can continue the fight they are making and attack at some new points. And of course police, aldermen, judges and other public servants will redouble their efforts.

"If Christ should come to the lower North Side! He has come, He is here, pointing to the field of conflict, saying still: 'I have not come to bring peace, but a sword,' until the foes that are preying on childhood and youth, debauching, blasting and blighting, are routed and the child of the lower North Side has a chance to grow up decent and clean, a chance to be sober and safe and pure. Attention! Forward! March!

How you may profit by it. Take Foley Kidney Pills. Geo. N. Barnhart, 919 8th Ave., Altoona, Pa., says: "During the last several years I suffered from backache and kidney trouble. The pains across my kidneys and hips were severe and upon arising I felt tired and worn out. The kidney action was irregular and caused much pain. I got Foley Kidney Pills and took them. Three bottles cured me completely and I am now as well as ever. My kidney action is normal and regular and I owe my recovery entirely to the use of Foley Kidney Pills, which I recommend strongly on every occasion." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

How it Works.

Hsu Ping-Cheu, the popular Chinese consul at San Francisco, discussed at a recent dinner his country's customs.

"There is one custom," said a young girl, "that I can't understand—and that is the Chinese custom of committing suicide by eating gold leaf, I can't understand how gold leaf can kill."

"The partaker, no doubt," smiled the consul, "succumbs from a consciousness of inward gilt."

In the Wake of the Measles.

The little son of Mrs. O. B. Palmer, Little Rock, Ark., had the measles. The result was a severe cough which grew worse and he coud not sleep. She says: "One bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I completely cured him and he has never been bothered since." Croup, whooping cough, measles cough all yield to Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. The genuine is in the yellow package always. Refuse substitutes. Sold by C. M. Parrish, Bellefonte, Pa.

BUMPER CROPS

Predicted This Year's Wheat Yield Will be Greatest Ever Produced.

Promise that this year's wheat crop will be the greatest ever produced is given in the June crop report issued by the Department of Agriculture. Estimates by the Department's experts indicate that approximately 764,291,857 bushels of wheat will be harvested in this country this summer and autumn, an increase of about 68,848,857 bushels over that garnered last year. Of winter wheat the indicated yield is about 480,000,000 bushels and of spring wheat 284,231,000 bushels.

Professor N. C. Murray, acting chairman of the crop reporting board, commenting upon the report, said:

"The acreage of spring wheat shows a total larger than any previous record and nearly 9 per cent. greater than last year. On June 1 the crop was above the average in promise, the condition and acreage combined being such as to give hope for a yield of nearly 23 per cent. more than last year, and nearly 17 per cent. more than the average for the last five years.

"May was unfavorable for winter wheat, but, never-the-less, with the increased acreage there probably will be between three and four per cent. more winter wheat produced than last year, and between six and seven per cent. more than for the average of the last five years. Combining both spring and winter wheat, the indications point to a slightly larger yield per acre than was produced last year and about the same yield per acre as during the last five years. This would make a total production of all wheat of 9.9 per cent. more than last year and 10.2 per cent. more than the average for the last five years.

"The acreage of oats was not quite so large as it was last year, but the one-tenth of one per cent. reduction is substantially immaterial. The crop prospects are not so promising as a year ago. Last year's production was the largest ever recorded. The condition of the crop indicates a yield per acre of 27.7 bushels as compared with 31.9 last year, and 28 for the average of the last five years. This would make a total production of about 13.3 less than last year, but 4.8 per cent. more than the average of the last five years.

"The condition of all crops in the Pacific northwest, particularly in Washington and Oregon, is notably fine. If any one feature of the month covered by the report stands out above another, it was the drought which prevailed during May practically throughout the country. It affected materially not only the condition of winter wheat, but also the hay crop, which is one of the greatest crops of the country. That drought now, however, has been very largely relieved in all parts of the country."

The report estimates the principal crops as follows:

Spring wheat—Acreage 20,757,000, or 104.9 per cent. of 1910 acreage (19,778,000); June 1 condition 94.6, compared with 93.6, the ten-year average; indicated yield per acre 13.7 bushels, compared with 13.5 the five-year average.

Winter wheat—Acreage, 31,367,000, or 106.6 per cent. of 1910 acreage (29,427,000); June 1 condition 80.4, compared with 81.6 the ten-year average; indicated yield per acre 15.3 bushels, compared with 15.5 the five-year average.

All wheat—Indicated yield per acre 14.7 bushels, compared with 14.7 the five-year average.

Oats—Acreage, 35,250,000, or 90.9 per cent. of 1910 acreage (35,288,000); June 1 condition 85.7, compared with 88.4 the ten-year average; indicated yield per acre, 27.7 bushels, compared with 28.4, the five-year average.

Barley—Acreage 7,038,000, or 97 per cent. of 1910 acreage (7,257,000); June 1 condition 90.2, compared with 90.9, the ten-year average; indicated yield per acre, 24.9 bushels, compared with 24.8, the five-year average.

Rye—June 1 condition 88.6, compared with 90.2, the ten-year average, indicated yield per acre, 16.1 bushels, compared with 16.4, the five-year average.

Hay—June 1 condition 76.8, compared with 86.1 in 1910.

Pastures—June 1 condition 81.8, compared with 90.7, the ten-year average.

Beat Their Letter Home.

Last week two of Thomas Speece's boys, Joe and John, and Herb McClellan, of near Coleville, started out in quest of work. They did not leave any word behind to indicate when they might be expected back, although it was generally understood among the families that all three of the young men would be gone until their pockets were lined with gold and their bank account would make John D. Rockefeller's look like a postage stamp. They tramped down to the mine banks and then to Hublersburg and Howard, not, however, without getting lost and affording all three a chance to figure out that this is a pretty big world. At Hublersburg Herb McClellan wrote a postal card home, explaining that the crowd would not be back for a long time. It wasn't very long until they changed their minds, for all three suddenly called off the expedition and arrived home before the postal card got there

TENER SIGNS BILLS

Governor Approves "White Slave" and Other Important Measures.

Gov. John K. Tener redeemed another of his campaign pledges when he approved the Young bill, enlarging the rights of foreigners in recovering damages for injuries causing death. In his tour of the state last fall Tener promised to urge legislation of this character.

The bill was presented by Representative John Young of Allegheny county. The new law amends the act of 1855, which made no provision for those of foreign birth who had not gained citizenship. The Young law still limits the recovery of damages for injuries causing death to the husband, widow, children or parents of the deceased, but adds that "such husband, widow, children or parents of the deceased shall be entitled to recover whether he, she or they be citizens or residents of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, or citizens or residents of any other state or place subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, or of any foreign country or subjects of any foreign potentate.

The joint resolution adopted by the last Legislature expressing the wish of the citizens of Pennsylvania that the Panama canal he fortified was signed by Gov. Tener. The resolution was presented in the House by W. A. Magee, Allegheny, and recites that "It is highly essential to the welfare of the United States and to the peaceful and uninterrupted continuance of commerce that the Panama canal be protected from injury, destruction or capture," and that "the surest method of ensuring the freedom of the canal is to fortify it amply."

Copies of the resolution are to be transmitted to Congress.

The Ferguson "White Slave" bill, containing the features of a law already adopted by 28 states and urged by the National Vigilance Committee for suppression of traffic in women, was approved by Gov. Tener. The bill, which becomes effective at once, provides severe penalties for the offense known as "pandering."

Imprisonment for not more than 10 years is provided for a person found guilty of enticing or detaining a woman for purposes of prostitution, or who shall force his wife to lead an immoral life. A similar penalty is provided for any person accepting earnings under the above conditions, or for anyone who shall knowingly engage in transportation of a person for such purposes.

It is not to be a defense that an offense was committed outside of the state, but a charge may be prosecuted in any county where it was intended to commit the offense.

From this time forth it will be unlawful to sell, offer for sale or have in possession with intent to sell milk or cream that does not come up to the government standard. This is the effect of the action of Governor Tener is signing a bill which writes the Federal standards into the law of Pennsylvania.

Watering milk and thickening it with foreign substances are prohibited. Milk must contain at least three and one-half per cent. of butter fat and 12 per cent. of milk solids. Cream must contain at least 18 per cent. butter fat and if condensed or evaporated it must be so labeled. Skim milk may be sold as such.

The Dairy and Food Commissioner is empowered to enforce the law, the penalty being a fine of from $25 to $50 and imprisonment from 30 to 90 days.

Other bills signed include:

Requiring counties committing juveniles to institutions outside of the state to pay for maintenance of such charges.

Authorizing counties to pay state taxes on road bonds issued for improvements within their limits.

Prohibiting injury to shade or fruit trees along a highway under penalty of $10 fine or 5 days in jail.

Requiring foundries to be equipped with toilet rooms.

Requiring cities, boroughs and first class townships to pay for maintenance of prisoners awaiting hearing, or committed for non-payment of fine for violation of ordinance.

Authorizing Department of Forestry to grant rights of way through State reserves.

Providing the methods for taking testimony to be used in civil courts from witnesses residing in other States or countries.

Fixing penalty of $100 fine or six months in prison for any one tampering with electrical machinery or any consumer knowingly having in his possession a meter that has been tampered with or prevented from registering.

Regulating satisfaction of mortgages where original mortgages have been lost.

Placing policeman of boroughs under authority of burgess when on duty.

Enabling libellant in divorce proceedings on ground of desertion to testify to fact of desertion and efforts made to rerume martial relation.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS

Ayrshire Records for a Year—Various Condensations.

The official Ayrshire records for a year's test for admittance to advance registry are now made public. This report finishes the official test of 413 cows and heifers, a total of all that have qualified for advance registry since the system was inaugurated, the following being a report of the average of the whole: One hundred and thirty-seven 2-year-olds averaged for the year 7597 pounds of milk, 305.26 pounds of fat, equal to 358 pounds of butter. Sixty-six 3-year-olds averaged for the year 8798 pounds of milk, 349.57 pounds of fat equal to 407 pounds of butter. Forty-five 4-year-olds averaged for the year 9570 pounds of milk and 377.45 pounds of fat, equal to 440 pounds of butter. One hundred and sixty-six 5-year-olds and over averaged for the year 10.337 pounds of milk and 402.42 pounds of fat, equal to 467 pounds of butter. The whole number of 413 cows and heifers averaged for the year 6075 pounds of milk and 358.42 pounds of fat, equal to 418 pounds of butter.

Do not breed sows too young. They should farrow at from 12 to 14 months. This develops the maternity, and they are not so likely to become too fat. Then do not breed them again that year. After this keep them as long as possible. Six pigs from a mature sow are worth more as breeders or to feed than eight from a young one. Never use any but a pure blooded boar, and do not cross breed. Sometimes the first cross will fatten fully as well as pure-bloods, but after that there is bound to be deterioration.

The next annual meeting of the American Association of Farmers' Institute Workers will be held at Columbus, O., November 13 to 15, 1911. At the same place, and beginning, November 15, will be held the annual meeting of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations. Notice is sent out thus early in order that Farmers' Institute workers in arranging their work may have in mind the date of this meeting, and so arrange that it may be possible for all who are interested to attend.

The cucumber beetle attacks all the members of the cucurbit family. The larvae, when they attack the roots, as they often do, may be killed by tobacco dust or "tobacco tea." When the insects appear above the ground, arsenate of lead should be sprayed upon them. The spraying should be repeated whenever the insects reappear.

Among the experienced feeders of horses it is well known that no one feed will produce such good results as may be accomplished by the use of several feeds. No one kind of feed contains all the elements required to make a rapid and continuous growth, or round up the stock in fine show or market form. As no one kind of feed may be relied on to produce the best results, it is also well known that gains may not be made as cheaply with one or two kinds of feed (a narrow ration) as may be done with a variety of feeds.

Danger of injury to the limbs, as well as discomfort, results from allowing a horse to remain all night with damp legs, covered with mud, in drafty stables. Whenever straw is used for bedding, one of the very best possible materials, is at hard for cleaning and invigorating the legs.

The asparagus beetle may be cleared from the beds by the use of arsenate of lead sprayed on after the cutting season is over. Large asparagus shoots may be left as traps for the beetles. After the pests gather on these stalks to breed, destroy the traps.

Timothy does best in damp, but not wet, meadows. The best grass for the latter is redtop or alsike clover, while for the high ground such grasses as the slender wheat grass are to be preferred.

A strawberry grower who has succeeded in producing a berry which weighed 4¾ ounces says he never saw a big berry picked from a spring-set plant. He says that in the art of growing berries long experience is what counts. He advises placing a thin mulch around the plant and watering through this. Mosquito netting should be placed over the plant for shade, and something thicker over the berry itself to shield from sun, rain, birds and insects. This grower, after long experience, rejects a deep, loose soil. His prize berries are grown on hard, shallow soil.—Phila. Record.

Occident and Orient Unite.

In Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East which comes to Lock Havent Pa., June 29th. The interesting announcement is made that Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East will exhibit as indicated about. A remarkable event is announced in the leave-taking from public life of the old scout, "Buffalo Bill," who is making a last bow to each city he now visits—valedictory. It is further stated that arrangements have been made with officials of the railroads to run reduced rate excursions on that date, thus affording residents of this vicinity an opportunity to visit the exhibition at a minimum of expense. Two vast enterprises are now allied under one management. The union of Buffalo Bill's Wild West with Pawnee Bill's Far East brings together two great factors in out-of-door entertainment. While, of course, the general style of the combined entertainment remains the same as when they were separate units in public amusement, there will be many features entrely new to this style of exhibition. The Far East contingent will be represented in an Oriental spectacle of great beauty and splendor, introducing many picturesque types which inhabit the romantic East. In this scene and as a particular feature, Rossi's Musical Elephants, imported at an expense of $1,000 per week, will introduce their remarkable exhibition; playing various musical instruments, dancing, and in other manners evidencing the remarkable sagacity and wonderful training. In the Wild West section, Col. Wm. F. Cody, the last of the great scouts, will appear in the saddle at every performance, leading his Congress of Roughriders in some remarkable exhibitions of expert horsemanship. The chief scenic feature will be the Battle of Summit Springs, a reproduction of one of the deciding conflicts in Indian welfare, a battle in which Col. Cody participated and in which he shot and killed Chief Tall Bull. In A Holiday at "T-E" Ranch will be pictured the pleasures and pastimes of the plainsman, cowboy sports and a dance upon the green. The contrast to this scene of peaceful revelry will be shown in a sudden attack by Indians. Many new feaures have been added to make Col. Cody's final visit one to be remembered as an honest tribute to a long career of honest effort.

People Tell Each Other About Good Things.

Seventeen years ago few people in the world knew of such a preparation as a Powder for the feet. Today after the genuine merit of Allen's Foot-Ease has been told year after year by one gratified person to another, there are millions abroad and in this country who would as soon go without a dentifrice as without the daily use of Allen's Foot-Ease. Carrie Nation Dead.

Carrie Nation, the Kansas saloon smasher, died at Leavenworth, Kansas, last Friday night.

Paresis was the cause of the death. For several months, Mrs. Nation had suffered of nervous disorders, and on January 22 she entered the sanitarium in which she died.

Carrie Moore was born in Kentucky in 1846. In early life, she married a man addicted to intoxicants. This created in her an intense aversion to saloons. When he died she determined to devote her life to the suppression of bar rooms. Later, she removed to Kansas and married David Nation, who sympathized with her temperance principles. After considerable peaceful labor to stop drinking of alcoholic beverages, she decided to become militant.

Mrs. Nation's first saloon smashing was done in the bar room of the Carey hotel at Wichita, December 27, 1900. She remained in jail several days as a result. On January 21, 1901, armed with her favorite weapon, a hatchet, Mrs. Nation made another attack on Wichita. This time, she smashed two saloons.

During the next ten months, Mrs. Nation surprised liquor sellers in various Kansas towns, appearing unheralded and leaving a trail of ruined bar room fixtures wherever she went. Few saloonists used violence in resisting Mrs. Nation, although she was assaulted and hurt while wrecking a place at Enterprise, Kansas.

Aroused by the acts of the dauntless woman, the people of Kansas began to demand that all saloons be closed. Smashing parties were organized all over the states: As a result of agitation, bills were passed by the legislature strengthening the prohibitory laws.

Mrs. Nation after her activities in Kansas, became a lecturer and the editor of a paper called the Smasher's Mail. She did little smashing outside of Kansas. While lecturing in New York city, she created excitement by appearing at a horse show in Madison Square Garden and demanding that the occupants of the Vanderbilt box contribute money for a home for drunkards' wives founded by her in Kansas City, Kas.

Mrs. Nation made herself conspicuous in many cities by entering saloons and resorts and delivering talks on the evils of drinking.

The physician at the sanitarium informed Mrs. Nation several day ago that the end was near. She said nothing, but smiled. She became unconscious at noon Friday, and didnot revive. Relatives had been telegraphed for, but only the doctor and a nurse were at her bedside when she died.

THE AUDACITY OF MR. NILES.

We do not know how they like it, but we suspect it is a pretty stiff dose to those independent Republicans who were led into supporting the Keystone movement to learn in the last few days that Mr. Henry C. Niles, their leader, is trying to negotiate some deal whereby Pennsylvania may be swung into line for Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, for President in 1912. It is unnecessary to relate that Mr. Niles is supposed to be a Republican and that Mr. Wilson was elected Governor of New Jersey on the Democratic ticket. The combination seems to be a most unnatural one, and yet it is just about what might be expected from politicians of the Niles type, men who leave their party on trifling excuses and in the end find it difficult to say to just what party or faction or clan they do belong.

Coincident with the announcement that Mr. Niles is trying to manipulate things for Wilson in Pennsylvania, Mr. Wilson today makes his bow to the anti-Guffey Democrats at Harrisburg. Mr. Wilson is hot-foot on the chase after the Democratic nomination for President. There will be but one fly in the ointment for him today at Harrisburg. This is the expected presence of the Hon. Champ Clark, likewise enthused over his prospects for landing the place on the ticket so zealously coveted by Mr. Wilson. The big noise fest has been arranged by the Palmer-McCormick-Guthrie wing of the Pennsylvania Democracy, which picked up Colonel Guffey in the hour of his financial distress and in a most cold-blooded manner kicked him out of the party. Of the entire crew which aided in the move to humiliate Guffey there was probably not one but who at some time or other had profited from his leadership and the money which he lavished on the Democratic State and county organizations in the interest of his party success.

Although handed what was about the rawest deal known in Pennsylvania in many a day, it is just barely possible that Guffey will prove that he isn't a dead one by capturing control of the regular Democratic State Committee when it meets in July. If this comes to pass the Palmers and McCormicks and Guthries will have had but a brief day of glory. It was to bolster up their semblance of an organization and thus improve their chances in July that the Palmer-McCormick-Guthrie coterie invited Wilson and Clark to speak today at Harrisburg. Both being anxious to capture a few national delegates in Pennsylvania Mr. Wilson and Mr. Clark accepted the invitation. Both are scheduled to appear as head-liners today although in the event that Guffey wins out in July there will be the amusing spectacle of both Wilson and Clark kowtowing to him for favor rather than to his enemies, whose guests they are today.

Just how far Mr. Niles will get in his scheme to deliver independent Republican strength in Pennsylvania to Governor Wilson remains to be seen. Pennsylvania Republicans are not in the habit of going astray on national issues and the chances are that Mr. Niles will find that he has marked out for himself a job which most Republicans at least will prefer to and insist upon attending to themselves. Nevertheless it is interesting to learn just where Mr. Niles stands. This is the same Mr. Niles who is figuring as a stalking horse candidate for United States Senator against Senator Penrose. Mr. Eugene C. Bonniwell, recent manager of William H. Berry, is at present engaged in trying to frame up candidates for the Legislature who will sign a pledge to vote for Mr. Niles or "some other candidate equally acceptable" for United States Senator. On delivery of this bill of sale the campaign expenses of such candidates for the Legislature will be paid. Mr. Bonniwell is a Democrat but this is apparently a matter of small moment to Mr. Niles, to whom party lines mean nothing when an office is in sight.

Last fall we witnessed Mr. Niles attempting to decide for the people of Pennsylvania who they should have for Governor. Now we witness him not only attempting to manipulate an election of a United States Senator but also scheming to swing the Republican Keystone State for a Democrat for President. We suppose he will, as in everything else, undertake to do all this in the name of reform. The most charitable view we can take of his audacity is that he is sadly deficient in his ability to accurately estimate the intelligence of the Republicans of Pennsylvania.

CROOKED AND UNCLEAN?

Its pretty tough to be charged with being crooked politically, but to be accused of not being clean is rubbing it in. "If the "Democratic Watchman" is to be believed, the "Centre Democrat" is not only crooked but unclean. Listen to this from the columns of the "Democratic Watchman:"

"Last fall our contemporary, the Centre Democrat, was quite busy organizing the Keystone party. Little wonder the surprise at its offer this week to re-organize the Democratic party. Few reasonable people will object to doing anything that will add to the success of the party, but when those who would have destroyed it because it was wasn't run just to their liking last fall assume to take the matter of reorganizing into their own hands they can scarcely expect that those who have been Democrats always will lend much support to the movement. If the Democratic party in Pennsylvania is to be reorganized let it be done by clean, straight Democrats."

Query: What is a clean, straight Democrat?

DESERVING OF PRAISE.

All honor to the Philadelphia Association, Penna. Reserves for their testimonial of devotion to the memory of the late War Governor, Andrew Gregg Curtin. In keeping with their custom, the Philadelphians who are proud to be known as Curtin's "boys," on Memorial Day sent a beautiful floral piece to Bellefonte which was placed on the grave of their old commander. While his "boys" still live his grave will ever be kept green. To Owen Jones, of Philadelphia, who loved the name of Curtin, all honor is due for not only the suggestion that the grave be decorated each year but also for his individual effort in seeing to it that the obligation is faithfully performed.

Predicts Taft's Re-election.

The Baltimore American prints this interview with Senator Penrose on the Republican presidential situation:

"I know whereof I speak when I tell you that William Howard Taft will be the next President of the United States." Senator Penrose is quoted as saying. "It has been said that the Democrats have made an enviable record during the present session of Congress. This is not so, and the people will find it out. The wool schedule of the tariff bill is considerably worse than that of the Wilson bill. It is a jumbled mass and I venture to say will do the Democratic party no good and reflect small credit upon them when the people are ready to square accounts."

"This country should be in the hands of the Republican party if it is to continue to be the leading nation it is today. Republican principles must prevail in the future as they have in the past. Taft is getting stronger every day and when next year rolls around I am confident that the majority of the citizens of this great republic will rally to his aid."

Senator Penrose concluded by predicting that Pennsylvania will give Mr. Taft next year a larger majority than it ever gave a presidential candidate.

Married at Howard.

The wedding of a popular young couple was that at Howard on Thursday evening of last week when Miss Stella Eva Earon, of Beech Creek, became the bride of John Packer, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Packer, of Bald Eagle township. The wedding ceremony was performed at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage at Howard, Rev. R. S. Taylor officiating, and was witnessed by a few intimate friends of the happy young couple. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Earon and until May 1, last, was chief operator in the Beech Creek exchange of the Bald Eagle Telephone Company. The groom is a splendid young man and is employed as a weigher at the new milk condensary at Mill Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Packer will reside at Mill Hall.

MRS. WETZEL DEAD

Aged and Honored Resident of Bellefonte Passed Away on Monday.

In the death of Mrs. John Wetzel, who passed away on Monday, last, Bellefonte has lost one of its aged and honored residents. The deceased was the mother of Mrs. Jared Harper and the several Wetzel boys who are well known and actively identified with business interests in Bellefonte and other places. Funeral services were held today at 10 o'clock from the Reformed church, interment being made in the Union cemetery.

Susan Musser Wetzel was born near Penn Hall, Centre County, January 26, 1831, making her age 80 years, 4 months and 16 days. She spent her childhood in Penns and Brush valleys. When she was six years of age her father, John Musser, moved onto the farm now owned by Frank Musser and John Wetzel, one mile southeast of Bellefonte. She was married to John Wetzel on March 25, 1852, and to this union were born 12 sons and one daughter. Three sons died in infancy. The surviving nine children are: Rev. Frank Wetzel, of Stoyestown, Pa.; Samuel, at home; John Henry, Oscar W. and Charles E., of Bellefonte; Harvey M., of Anawalt, West Virginia; Clyde and William, of Nelson, Nebraska; Lewis, of Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. Jared Harper, of Bellefonte.

Twenty-nine grand-children and five great-grand-children also survive as does her husband, who was 84 years old on January 2, last. The husband and children mourn the loss of a good wife and a loving mother. This is the first death in the immediate family since 1870, and since the first seven years of her married life when Mrs. Wetzel lived near Gillentown, Centre County, and in Stephenson County, Illinois, her entire life was spent in and nearby Bellefonte. She was during her life-time a faithful member of the Reformed church, ever loyal to its interests and a faithful worker in the cause of the Master.

A. C. HOPKINS DEAD

Well Known Resident of Lock Haven Passes Away After Stroke.

Death, on Friday of last week, claimed A. C. Hopkins, one of Lock Haven's best known citizens and business men. The death of Mr. Hopkins followed a stroke of apoplexy, sustained four days previously. Deceased was a resident of Lock Haven for the last 44 years. He at one time represented that district in Congress.

Mr. Hopkins was born in Chautauqua County, New York, September 45, 1837, making his age not quite 74 years. He was descended from a prominent family, whose representatives were early settlers in Connecticut, having come from Coventry, England, in 1634. Mr. Hopkins located in Lock Haven in 1867. While his chief business was that of lumbering he was engaged in numerous other enterprises and at the time of his death was president of the Falls Creek Coal Company.

Surviving are a widow, two sons, William and Donald, and a step-daughter, Mrs. A. W. McCormick, all of Lock Haven.

Death at Beech Creek.

Mrs. William F. Strunk, a well known resident of Beech Creek, died at her late home at that place on Tuesday of last week, aged 66 years 6 months and 13 days. She had been in ill health for a number of years, during the greater part of which period she was an invalid. Despite her affliction Mrs. Strunk displayed the greatest fortitude and was a patient sufferer to the end. She was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends and by all her death is sincerely mourned. Deceased was born in Nittany valley and was a daughter of the late Henry Grove. In early life she became identified with the Baptist church but in more recent years she was a member of the Beech Creek Methodist Episcopal church. Surviving are a husband and the following children: Mrs. Charles Henry, of Grampian; Miss Eva Strunk, of Lock Haven; Mrs. Henry Runner, of Avis; Mrs. Charles Winslow, of Blanchard; William B, Hayes, Milford and Roy, all of Beech Creek. Funeral services were held from the late home of the deceased on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, interment being made at Blanchard.

Died at Vintondale.

Mrs. Bella F. Brown, wife of Scott Brown, died on Friday morning, at her late home at Vintondale, Cambria county. She had been ill for several years, her death being due to cancer. Before her marriage Mrs. Brown was Miss Bella Fink, a daughter of Mrs. Nancy A. Fink, of Hannah, Centre County. She was well known and by all was held in high esteem. She was born June 20, 1870, making her age 40 years, 11 months and 20 days. Surviving are her husband and mother and also the following brothers and sisters: George, Benjamin, Jacob and Thomas Fink and Mrs. Alice Marks, of Hannah; Mrs. Margaret Rowe, of Vintondale; John S. Fink, of Bellwood; Richard Fink, of Northumberland; William E. Fink and Mrs. Hannah Herrington, of Julian.

Popular Vote Wins.

The United States Senate on Monday passed the House resolution declaring for the election of United States Senators by popular vote instead of by Legislatures. An amendment was attached to the resolution providing that elections be held under federal supervision.

RE-ELECT TEACHERS

Bellefonte School Board Continues Tax Rate at 11 Mills.

With the close of the present year the old system of electing members of school boards passes out of existence. Bellefonte borough, instead of having nine school directors, elected by wards, will have but five, elected in the borough at large. That is, the five directors will be elected without regard to the ward in which they reside. They will be elected in November.

The present board of nine members, which holds over until the end of the year, held its final meeting of the old year on Monday evening. The several officers were continued, as follows: Dr. M. J. Locke, president; D. F. Fortney, treasurer; W. Homer Crissman, secretary.

All of the present teachers were re-elected with the exception of Clarence Toole. Miss Laura Harrison was elected to succeed Mr. Toole as an assistant teacher in the High School. Her salary was fixed at $65. An additional teacher for the High School will be elected in the near future and the place will probably go to Miss Ella Leavy. It will be recalled that some time ago Miss Leavy gave up her position in the High School to give her assistance to her brother's family in the west. The new school code makes it possible for the charging of tuition for all township pupils attending the High School and it is expected that upward of fifty will be in attendance next year. It was the belief of the board of directors that it would either be necessary to refuse admittance to township pupils or employ an additional teacher. The latter course has been adopted. The tuition charged for such pupils, it was stated, will cover the cost of employing the one additional teacher.

The salary of Irvin Noll, assistant principal in the High School, was increased from $85 to $90. The salary of Miss Rosa Fauble, teacher of English in the High School, was advanced to $65.

The board of directors fixed the school tax for the coming year at 11 mills.

BANK CLOSES DOORS

Huntingdon Institution Stops with Winding up of an Estate.

The Huntingdon Bank, one of the best known and oldest financial institutions in that town, closed its doors very unexpectedly on Monday morning, last. The bank, which was a private institution, was not closed because of failure but owing to the fact that a secret contract entered into on May 14, 1907, by the late C. H. Glazier made him the owner of the bank. The bank being a part of his estate it was deemed legally necessary to close it out and wind up its affairs. That this course was to be followed was formally announced in the form of a notice posted on the bank's doors on Monday morning by Julian B., Mary E., Phebe A. and Hattie F. Glazier, executrixes of the C. H. Glazier estate. The announcement came as a complete surprise to the people of Huntingdon.

In their formal statement the executrixes announced that they "hope the assets and property of the estate will be sufficient to pay off his (Mr. Glazier's) indebtedness. Accounts will be filed in the court from time to time and dividends paid to the creditors as frequently as the collection of the assets will justify."

It is said that the liabilitiees of the bank are about $500,000 and the assets in the neighborhood of $503,000.

Mrs. Mary Whitehill Dead.

Mary Kimport, widow of the late Andrew Whitehill, died at her home near Lemont on Thursday evening of last week, death being due to a general breaking down of the system. She was the only daughter of the late Daniel Kimport and was born where she lived all of her 69 years. She was married 46 years ago to Andrew Whitehill and to them these daughters and sons were born: Mrs. Elmer Evey, of State College; Charles, of Oak Hall; Frank, of Lemont, and Harry and Minnie, at home. The children mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother and the community will miss one who was a good neighbor. She was a member of the Lemont Presbyterian church. Burial was made on Saturday morning at 9.30 o'clock in the Boalsburg cemetery, Rev. W. K. Harnish officiating.

Death of Thomas Wilson.

Thomas Wilson died on Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Susan McGinley, at Pleasant View. Deceased was 88 years of age. His death followed an illness of six or eight weeks and was due chiefly to the infirmities attending advanced years. Funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, with interment at the Advent cemetery. Surviving Mr. Wilson are three children: Elmyra, of Philadelphia, and James Wilson and Mrs. Susan McGinley, of Pleasant View.

Miss Ella Dale is quite ill from nervous prostration.

J. G. Heberling, who has been ill some time, is much improved.

Dr. J. E. Ward, of Bellefonte, spent Sunday at the old family tree here.

Mrs. Mary E. Stover is down from Altoona for a visit with old-time friends.

J. A. Decker is down in Virginia looking after his large coal interests there.

A. S. Walker has been somewhat indisposed the past week, but at present is better.

Mrs. J. G. Hess, after spending the winter at Medina, Ohio is back to her home in town here.

The lower frame of the Cronover 60x100 barn was raised last Saturday. Reed Bros. are on the job.

W. E. Stover and O. M. Sheets are on a fishing trip down Penns creek, with headquarters at Millheim.

Fred R. Fry, who has charge of a large dairy herd in Blair County, was home for commencement at State.

J. H. Miller spent several days visiting friends in Holidaysburg, returning home between showers on Monday.

Rev. Francis S. Shultz is attending the General Synod ot the Lutheran church, at Washington, D. C., this week.

W. Francis Speer, candidate for Democratic nomination for Register, was here looking after his fences on Saturday.

Bigler and Stine, two of Pleasant Gap's representative men, spent Monday at the J. B. Whitmer home, at White Hall.

Faank McCormick and wife, with their six children, came up from Lock Haven to attend the commencement exerises this week.

J. R. Lemon, candidate for Democratic nomination for County Commissioner, was here looking up political fences last week.

Our fishing party returned on Friday with a good catch of the spreckled beauties. They report having slain a number of large rattlers.

Oscar Smith came down from Altoona to attend commencement at State and also tarry a few days with his family. He expects to move to that city later on.

J. H. Lemon is "batching" it. His good wife is down at Morgantown, West Virginia, lending a helping hand nursing a grand-son, Bernard, who is ill irom fever.

Sunday evening while Fred Williams and a lady friend were out driving the vivid flashes of lightning frightened the horse,cousing an upset. Both were spilled out and the buggy so badly wrecked that they completed the journey on foot.

Last Sunday, June 11, marked the eightieth anniversary of the birth of Henry W. McCracken, of Rock Springs. The occasion was appropriately celebrated by the serving of an excellent dinner which was prepared by this affectionate wife and daughters. Mrs. McCracken celebrated her eightieth birthday anniversary just one month earlier, May 15. It is past 63 years since Mr. McCracken married Eliza Campbell, on the adjoining farm. Six fine children blessed the union, two sons and four daughters: Rev. J. O. C. McCracken, of Johnstown; Annie, married to R. M. Campbell, of Ohio; Harry, Mary, Clara and Lizzie, at home. By industry, honesty and fair dealing as his guide Mr. McCracken has prospered and now is the owner of several of the most prosperous farms in the Glades. The McCracken home is one of the most hospitable in the valley and visitors there know in advance that they are sure of a royal welcome.

Blanchard.

Liveryman Edwin Bechdel has given the contract for his new 50x80 livery barn to Charles W. White.

Two valuable cows owned by Mrs. Mary F. Haagen on Sunday broke out of a pasture field and were killed by a New York Central frieght train.

Charles Salmon, one of Beech Creek's best known farmers, lost a valuable stallion several days ago. He recently refused an offer of $200 for the animal.

Clyde and Charles Bitner, Pennsylvania Railroad operators at Lock Haven, recently autoed here in their new Flanders car and enjoyed a little visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bitner.

Mrs. William H. Austin was taken suddenly ill on Thursday evening of last week and her husband was summoned home from Keating, where he is employed. We are glad to note that at present she is much improved.

The home of Samue Kline is all merriment these evening. A fine player organ has been installed. Any member of the family may now furnish all kinds of music, ranging from popular airs to classical selections heard in grand opera.

The Disciple church is now splendidlv lighted, L. C. Bullock, Jr., of Milesburg, having installed one of his famous gasoline lighting plants. The fixtures include handsome chandeliers suspended from the ceiling of the main entrance. A powerful light has been placed at the main enterance outside of the church.

Milesburg.

Charles King, of Water Street, is jubilant over the arrival of a big baby boy.

Homer Noll and wife, of Tyrone, spent Sunday in the burg with relatives and friends.

Joseph Heberling, of Penna. Furnace, spent the week with his daughter, Mrs. Ebbs.

Samuel Baird, of Lewistown, is spending a few days at the home of Joseph Baird and family.

Harry G. Ebbs will supply festivals, picnics etc. with ice cream at wholesale prices. Give him a call.

Roll Bryan and Edgar Miles are spending part of the week at Williamsport, attending commencement exercises at the Dickinson Seminary.

Scotia.

R. E. Cronemiller spent Sunday with his family. He is getting along nicely a State College and expects to move there in the fall.

Farmer Johnston appears to have all the bad luck going these days. Last week two valuable horses dropped dead. That means something with the present price of horses.

Mrs. Sarah Swoop, of Unionville, was a business visitor here on Thursday of last week. She has taught the primary school for three terms and is an applicant for it this term. The children are anxious that she shall have it.

A company of Philipsburg boy scouts, enroute to State College, stopped here on Friday for lunch in the evening. They were apparently none the worse for their long walk. They were a fine looking bunch of boys and behaved like gentlemen while they were here.

Ray Showers, of Zion, is the latest addition to the Emerick family. He is their new clerk. He is a very nice, polite and clever young man and our prediction is that he will make good. We hope that some day he may be at the head of business like that of Wanamaker or Sears-Robuck.

James Malone and wife came up from Thompson's lumber camp on Saturday evening, the first time they have been here since moving away two months ago. Jimmy was holding the ribbons over a pair of high steppers and was as proud as Lucifer over his new position. When they got through buying at John Haugh's store their home would have been a good place for a hungry man to have visited for his Sunday dinner.

He simply couldn't stay away any longer. We mean Harry Pennington. He was away two long weeks, over at State College, and the worst of it is that he was working hard. He is of the opinion that when the good Lord rolled up this little ball of earth Scotia was the only place smiled upon. Harry evidentally didn't waste his time while away for on Monday he did a very fine piece of carpenter work on the portico of one of his neighbor's houses.

A fine game of baseball was played here on Saturday between the State College town boys and Scotia. It resulted in the close score of 5—3 in favor of Scotia. Cal. Lykens was the twirler for Scotia and he has proved to his friends that there is such a thing as "coming back," even if Jim. Jeffries did fall down trying to do it. Last summer Cal lost his nerve and, as it is termed, suffered from a bad case of "Charley Horse," but on Saturday he not only "came back" but had belis on.

John Johnstonbaugh and wife combined business and pleasure on Saturday in Bellefonte. While Mrs. Johnstonbaugh was attending to some shopping John was trying out a new horse that he expects to buy. Judging from the account he gives of the horse John is to have something out of the ordinary, for he drove it from Bellefonte to Milesburg and back in fourteen minutes, met fifty automobiles and passed some that were going the same direction but entirely too slow for his nag. John said that life was too short for him to poke along behind the autos.

Port Matilda.

A number of persons from here attended the commencement exercises at State College this week.

James Robinson and Samuel Osman spent Saturday in Tyrone. They thought one day was quite long enough in the town.

The Methodist Episcopal church of this place held its Children's Day service on Sunday morning. The attendance was large and the program rendered was excellent.

Miss Nora Woodring, of this place, who has been visiting several months with her sister, Mrs. William G. Weston, of Trafford City, returned home on Monday evening.

The funeral of Mrs. George R. Williams, which was held ou Wednesday of last week, was largely attended. The services were held in the Methodist Episcopal church at 10 o'clock, A. M. Interment was made in the Presbyterian cemetery.

Like lots of other places we have been having some terrific rain and wind storms here lately, destroying corn fields and washing great quantities of soil from the lower lands. But the rain has done lots of good, the ground having been very dry all through this section of the valley and for a time it looked as if the crops were going to be short.

Quite a number of our citizens are beautifying their residences by building concrete walks and curbs. This not only adds to the value of property but greatly improves the appearance of the town. Most of our homes have water installed. For a small town Port Matilda is not far behind much larger towns. Some of our good people of the town formed a company and built a reservoir, which keeps all well supplied with good mountain water.

Stung.

Any small boy who cries "stung" at Emanuel Noll, the efficient Pennsylvania Railroad baggagemaster, these days, will not go very far wide of the mark. Emanuel is, in fact, a very much stung man, at present. On Saturday, last, the heavy storm upset the frame shed covering his bee hives and since that time each day has been productive of countless stings. There were twenty-four hives under the shed, containing possibly 800,000 bees, and fortunately but two or three of the hives were broken open. Nevertheless, one good, strong hive contains from 30,000 to 40,000 bees, so that for a time there were more angry bees flying about in the Noll yard than could be taken care of while the storm was on, and after that, too. Each day Mr. Noll has been coaxing a few of the bees back into their normal temper, but while doing this he has had to assume the role of a martyr and submit to numerous stings.

Unionville.

Miss Mary Buck returned home last week.

George Sensor and daughter, of Tyrone, spent Sunday at this place.

Mrs. Effie Blazer is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Hazel.

Lewis Biddle and a friend from Lemont spent Sunday with the former's parents here.

Thomas McClellan and family, of Altoona, have moved into the home occupied by George W. Morrison.

Lawrence D. E. Baird and wife, of Altoona, are guests at the home of Mrs. Baird's sister, Miss Clara Cadwallader.

Mary Zahniser and brother, Mendal, and sisters Grace and Clara, of Port Allegany, Pa., are visiting at the home of their sister, Mrs. J. Harold Fisher.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baldwin, of New Castle, and Mr. and Mrs. Griest and daughter, Jane, of Barnesboro, visited recently at the T. E. Griest home.

Marie, the accomplished daughter of T. E. Griest, departed on Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baldwin in their touring car, their destination being New Castle, Pa.

The International Correspondence School, of Scranton, have a fine exhibit in the bay window of the store of J. C. Stere and Sons. Boys, here is your chance to untie your hands.

The ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold an "Exchange" in Grange Hall, on Saturday evening, June 17. Bread, pies, cakes, etc., will be offered for sale.

H. D. Lindemuth and B. F. Peters departed on Monday evening for Huntingdon, where the former purchased a new Ford automobile. Harry took Frank along to help steer the critter back on Tuesday evening.

Smullton.

Sumner Musser, of Aaronsburg, visited Boyd Waite here over Sunday.

The Oregon Indian Medicine show was here on Friday of last week.

Mearl Winkleblech and wife visited the former's grandparents here last week.

Dr Gutelius, the popular dentist of Millheim, attended to some professional work here on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hackenberg attended the funeral of their little granddaughter, at Woodward, last week.

Mrs. Luther Stover and Mrs. Winkleblech, of Aaronsburg, visited several days at the home of Preston Seyler.

James Winkleblech has all of his teams engaged in hauling bark from his lumber operations east of Wolfe's store.

A heavy thunder shower passed over the valley on Saturday and the farmers in the eastern section say their corn fodder is already shredded for this year.

Captain Hugh S. Taylor, Horton S. Ray, proprietor of the Brockerhoff House, Dr. DeLaun Stewart and Charles L. Gates, all of Bellefonte, comprised an automobile party that visited here one day last week.

James Gregg, of Tyrone, formerly a popular school teacher of Centre County, and now representing the American Book Company, was recently in this vicinity calling on school directors and also numerous old-time friends.

The Children's Day service in the Reformed church at Rebersburg on Sunday evening was very good. The heat was so intense that many persons were compelled to leave the church. The shower later made it unpleasant for country people to return home.

Mt. Eagle.

Earl Leathers was a Bellefonte visitor on Saturday.

Our supervisors were busy last week repairing the highways.

John Bathurst attended to some shopping in Howard on Saturday evening.

Rev. Mr. Baughman preached in the Mt. Eagle church on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heaton spent Sunday at the home of Miss Ella Leathers.

Albert Aikey will go to Renovo on Sunday, where he has secured a nice position.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reeder, of Tyrone, were Sunday visitors at the Green Shope home.

Mrs. Culvey and daughter, Katy, of Lock Haven, visited on Sunday with the former's daughter, Mrs. Al Strickland.

W. F. Leathers and Miss Pearl Gates were visitors at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. John Warner, on Marsh Creek.

A small freight wreck occurred below Mt. Eagle on Monday morning. A double-header going west jammed into an empty coal train, wrecking five cars and the caboose. Fortunately nobody was hurt. The locomotive was slightly damaged.

BELLE ONTE - PA

A Strenuous Day.

A number of Williamsporters who on Monday went to State College to attend the Senior class day exercises of Commencement week, had a series of unusual experiences. At Mount Eagle, a few miles from Bellefonte on the Bald Eagle Valley road, they were held up for some time while a bad freight wreck was cleared from the tracks ahead. Going out of Bellefonte to State College, their train ran in behind a freight having a derailed engine, and here was another wait of an hour and a half. Finally, within three miles of State College a broken brake rod gave the passengers another period of leisure. On the return the party was delayed by washouts and were made uncomfortable in the cars of the Bellefonte Central when they ran into one of the many storms which swept that section.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

Appropriations Approved.

Bellefonte and State College fared well in the matter of appropriations by the recent Legislature and on Tuesday disposed of by Governor Tener. The Bellefonte hospital appropriation of $15,000 was not reduced by the Governor, nor was the appropriation of $800,000 for State College pared down. The appropriation for the Philipsburg hospital was reduced from $28,549 to $23,955. The Altoona hospital appropriation was cut from $89,350 to $58,500. An appropriation of $15,000 for the Altoona Mercy hospital was vetoed. The Governor approved the Lock Haven hospital appropriation bill as it passed in the Legislature.

Just as Green, the druggist, says, Liggett's orangeade is cooling, refreshing and delicious. Have you tried a glass?

Hecla Park Dances.

The Friday afternoon and evening concerts and dances at Hecla Park were resumed for the season, on Friday, June 9th. Christy Smith's Orchestra has again been engaged for the summer of 1911. Hecla with its beautiful grounds, and other features that go to make an ideal play ground, never was more attractive than this year.

Trains leave Bellefonte for the Park at 2.20 and 6.55 P. M. and returning leave the Park for Bellefonte at 4.41 and 9.15 P. M.

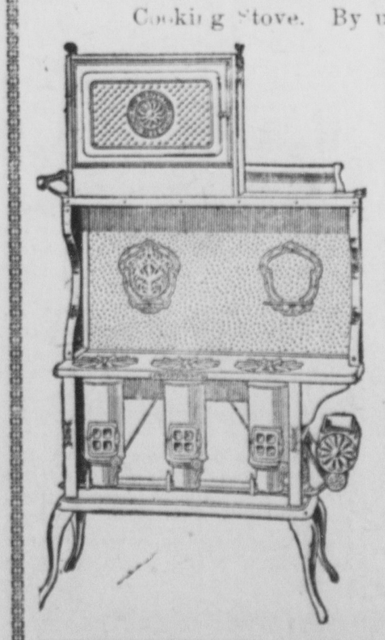
Put This Stove In Your Kitchen

It is wonderfully convenient to do kitchen work on a stove that's ready at the instant wanted, and out of the way the moment you're done. Such a stove is the New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cooking Stove. By using it you avoid the continuous overpowering heat of a coal fire and cook with comfort, even in Dog Days.



The New Perfection
Wick (Blue Flame)
OIL STOVE

is so constructed that it does not add perceptibly to the heat of the room. It differs from all other oil stoves in its substantial CABINET TOP, with shelves for warming plates and keeping the cooked food hot, and drop shelves for holding small cooking utensils. Has every convenience, even to bars for towels. Three sizes

A Doctor's Story

How a Trained Nurse Dominated One of His Patients

By EDWIN T. MARTIN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"Is that you, doctor?"

"Yes. What is it?"

"My nurse is killing me."

"Who are you?"

There was a click, followed by silence. I waited for some time, but, getting no response, hung up the receiver, turned over and tried to go to sleep. The effort was unsuccessful. I recommended the trained nurses for all my patients and felt responsible for them. And if there had been no responsibility whatever the fact that a nurse was killing any one and I had been called on to prevent the murder was quite enough to keep me awake.

The next morning it occurred to me that the woman who had called me must have been interrupted at the telephone. Whoever interrupted her very likely heard her message to me. If she was delirious I would either have been called up by the person who had stopped her and the matter explained or the fact would be mentioned to me during the day while I was making my round of visits. I started out after my morning office hour had expired expecting a solution of the mystery.

I called upon every one of my patients that day who was ill enough to have a trained nurse. There was not one of the women, so far as I could discover, who was not perfectly satisfied with her nurse. There was not one who was delirious or had been delirious during the night. After having made the last call on my list I tried to think of some one I might have omitted. But this was but a momentary thought, for it was impossible, even if I had made no memoranda, that I should have forgotten any seriously sick person I was treating.

I went to bed that night troubled. There was a mystery that I did not like. I regarded it as possible that a nurse might so dominate a sick person, especially a woman, that the invalid would not dare to complain of her to the attendant physician. I had once been treating a woman who when I sent the nurse out of the room for something said to me in a hurried whisper, "Doctor, if you don't take that nurse away from me I shall die." I dismissed the nurse and never forgot the episode. Indeed, it taught me that it might be possible for a patient to suffer under a nurse's care or want of care or dominating will power and not be accorded an opportunity to inform the doctor without the nurse being aware of the complaint.

When making professional visits I keep in constant touch with my office by telephone and the next day was called up by my assistant, who said:

"A very singular message came about half an hour ago. A woman telephoned: 'Doctor, oh, doctor, do get rid of this nurse! She is'— The message was cut off at that point, and I heard nothing more."

With this second call for help I began to be worried and puzzled beyond measure. I could not believe that any one of my patients could be out of her head without my being informed of the fact. The nurse was likely to be aware of it and would surely report the matter to me. There was the uncomfortable alternative that some nurse was obnoxious to the invalid of whom she was in charge and the patient had telephoned me and been stopped by the nurse. There was another horrible view of the case—that a mysterious, slow murder was being practiced on one of my patients, who was trying to communicate with me and was stopped by the murderess.

The next day I started on my round of visits determined to note every case of an invalid woman with a view to determining her relations with her nurse. Though I was a young practitioner, I had fallen into a large practice and had a long list. I soon learned that with the multiplicity of responsibilities resting upon me it would not be a difficult matter for a nurse to keep a patient from communicating with me if the former were disposed to do so. It was impossible for me to attend to my patients and make an investigation at every house I called.

As soon as I had finished my day's calls I telephoned to a detective agency to send me a young and well dressed man who would pass for a physician. A Mr. Jernegan called on me during the evening. I told him of my mysterious calls and asked him to make my round of visits with me the next day in the guise of my assistant with a view to discovering which one of my patients was not en rapport with her nurse. He was a genteel looking young man and listened to all I said without comment. The next morning he reported, a beard he had worn shaved off with the exception of a pair of mutton chop whiskers, a pair of glasses on his nose and a hand bag for surgical instruments. We doctors have a peculiarly unmistakable walk when we carry our satchels, and as Jernegan preceded me down to my automobile I noticed that he had got it to perfection. Indeed, I think he looked more like a medical man than I.

I took Jernegan into every house where there was a woman patient sick enough to require a trained nurse, introducing him in some cases as my assistant, in others as a consulting practitioner or specialist whose views I desired to obtain. While driving from one house to the next I intended to visit I gave him a hint as to what I should require of him, that he might be prepared to speak with an apparent show of knowledge of the subject, especially when there was a nurse who had some knowledge of it herself. Though some of my cases were causes of anxiety to me, I could not but be amused at the serious, thoughtful manner he entered upon each case I asked him to consider. He even knew enough of a consulting physician's relations with the doctor who calls him into the case to defer to the other's judgment while giving an opinion. And I was surprised at how adroitly he concealed the fact that he didn't know what he was talking about.

We entered one house where the nurse, Mrs. Webster, a woman rather older than the average, was a very motherly person and evidently devoted to her charge, Miss Edwards, down with typhoid fever. Or, rather, the patient was in that weak state which follows immediately after the disease. Jernegan put on more professional importance than usual, reminding me of certain doctors I have known who conceal their want of knowledge of a case under an appearance of great wisdom. Presently he said to me:

"Please excuse me, doctor; there are certain features of the case that I should like to inquire about from the nurse." Then, turning to her, he added, "Mrs. Webster, I desire to confer with you in another room."

I glanced at the nurse, and her expression spoke volumes. She could not refuse to go with him, yet her face told me that she dreaded to do so. She looked a sort of appeal to me, as though to communicate without speaking that there was a reason why she should not leave the patient. But Jernegan's face indicated that the interview in another room must take place, and the woman led him out. He shut the door behind them and left me with the patient.

The moment we were alone together an agonized expression came over the invalid's face.

"Have you called me by telephone?" I asked.

"Twice."

"Tell me in a few words what is the trouble."

"She's trying to poison me."

The expression on her face was so full of horror that I stopped her. I went to the telephone and called for another nurse, then back to the patient, told her what I had done and that I would remain until the arrival of the substitute. This done, I went about the room collecting what medicines I could find.

Meanwhile Jernegan remained in the other room with the nurse. In ten minutes the one I had called for arrived, and, placing my patient under her care, I went to the room where Jernegan and Mrs. Webster were. Jernegan was looking at a book. Mrs. Webster was standing looking out of a window. She appeared very much troubled.

"There's your quarry," said Jernegan, for the first time dropping all assumption of being a doctor.

"I know it," I replied. "The patient has told me all. Mrs. Webster, will you please come downstairs?"

We all went to the floor below, where we would not disturb the patient with a scene, and I told Mrs. Webster to prepare to leave the house. She said she must go to the patient's room, but I did not permit this, of course.

I did not like simply to turn the woman off because I suspected she had some malign intention toward her patient, and I did not like to have her arrested, for I hardly knew what to charge her with. Notwithstanding the invalid's condition, I went to her, leaving Mrs. Webster in charge of Jernegan, and asked her if she felt strong enough to tell me what had occurred between her and her nurse. Miss Edwards told me that she had seen Mrs. Webster on one occasion dropping a powder in some fluid medicine before giving it. After that Miss Edwards held in her mouth all the medicine given her till her nurse's back was turned, then got rid of it.

A sick person is so liable to see what does not actually occur that I would not act upon this information without the discovery of some poison on the premises. This could not be done without an analysis, and I felt obliged to discharge Mrs. Webster, though I told Jernegan to have her shadowed for a few days. None of the drugs found turned out to be poison. This did not prove that the nurse did not have some poison which we could not find. I could get nothing very satisfactory out of the patient and was forced to believe that her fears were the result of her physical condition. I therefore paid no further attention to the matter so far as concerned the nurse.

After Miss Edwards' recovery, taking up a newspaper one day, I noticed that Mrs. Webster had been arrested for attempting to poison Miss Edwards while the latter was ill and under her care. It was charged that the nurse's name was not Webster, but Coates; that she was a distant relative of her patient. Miss Edwards had fallen heir to a large estate, and Mrs. Coates was next of kin and in case of Miss Edwards' death would inherit the property. It was charged that the nurse had purposely secured the case to get rid of her patient.

The case was tried, and everything I had seen stated in the newspaper was proved except the poisoning. I think it probable that it was the nurse's intention to get her charge out of the way either by poison or malicious domination. But since no poison was found the nurse was acquitted.

Work of the Locomotive Fireman.

To a husky young man shoveling twenty tons of coal a day may not sound like a terrible undertaking, but that is because he fails to appreciate the difference between shoveling that quantity in the course of a ten hour day, standing on a steady footing and pausing for a moment whenever he feels like it to gaze at the scenery or light a cigarette and trying to keep his balance on a jolting, jerking, plunging steel deck which tries ceaselessly to pitch him head first into the side of the cab, while with legs spread wide apart he humps over a scoop shovel, working with frantic energy to get coal into the firebox fast enough to keep steam up. While the engine is running the fireman must be straddled out on the deck, working continually to the limit of his strength, for ordinarily he will have to get from two and a half to three tons of coal into the firebox every hour. Three and a half tons is generally regarded as the limit of a fireman's capacity, but this has been greatly exceeded on the fastest trains.—Technical World Magazine.

The Music of Birds.

Birds are usually accounted the most musical of animals, yet it is very much of a task to set their notes to music. The reason is that birds are utterly negligent of the laws of harmony. There is not one of them, it is safe to say, that knows the difference between a major third and a dominant chord. This deficiency in musical knowledge is rather surprising when we consider how beautifully the birds sing and may be used as an argument to show that a theoretical knowledge is a humbug. But if birds knew more about harmony their songs could all be set down and quite a decent revenue derived from the sale thereof. Another reason why it is difficult to put the melody of the song birds into notes is that the quality of the tone is unlike any musical instrument. This is true of all birds except the thrush, whose song descends for the first three notes in perfect seconds and with much purity of tone.—From Old Scrap Book.

Tickling a Hippo.

"Come here and I'll scratch your tongue, Caliph," a visitor to the Central park menagerie heard the keeper say to the young hippopotamus.

The visitor hadn't expected that the hippo understood English, but apparently he did. He came up to the edge of the tank, opened his jaws a yard or so and waited. The keeper put his hand into the open mouth and titillated the animal's tongue with the ends of his fingers.

"That's the way to make a hippo love you," said the keeper. "They like to be tickled, just as a cat likes to have you stroke its back. Caliph wouldn't close his mouth on my arm, and I know I am taking no risk. They are the most amiable big beasts in the world, and I would trust them more than I would an elephant."—New York Sun.

Force of Light.

Light has an actual mechanical pressure and can be measured in the laboratory. It has been found that the sun's light in itself presses against the earth with a force something like 70,000 tons. As the surface of a sphere varies as the square of the radius, and as the volume or mass varies as the cube of the radius, and as the mechanical pressure of light on the whole surface varies as that surface, and as the force of gravity varies as the mass, if a sphere is made smaller and smaller it is easily seen that the pressure of light does not decrease so fast as the force of gravity, so bodies beyond a certain minuteness could not reach the sun, but would be repelled by the mechanical force of its light.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Dear Denial.

"I have heard the late Archbishop Ryan tell of two plump gourmets who were discussing during Lent their favorite fast dishes," said a Philadelphian.

"'Trout,' said the first, 'with a sigh, has gone up, thanks to the high cost of living and the Lenten demand.'

"'Yes,' said the other. 'Isn't it terrible? Oysters, terrapin, teal duck, wine, caviar—everything is dearer. Indeed, I often wonder these days where one is to get the money to fast with.'"

Office of the Footman.

"I don't believe there is anything in that talk about Harlow being hard up," said Little Blake. "Why, he's just blossomed forth with a footman on his motor."

"Footman!" echoed Jinkinson derisively. "Footman is good! That isn't a footman. It's a deputy sheriff in charge of the car."—Harper's Weekly.

"Carlyle was a great thinker. You can't turn to a single page without finding some gem of thought. Here, for instance, he says that there is strength in cheerfulness."

"So there is in cheese."—Exchange.

Sydney Smith's Wit.

As Lord Brougham one day rode by in his carriage, on the panel of which was a large B, Sydney Smith is said to have remarked, "There goes a carriage with a B outside and a wasp within."

The Missionary a Puzzle.

To the untutored Chinamen the presence of the missionary is a puzzle. They simply cannot imagine human beings exiling themselves from their native land for the love of men on the other side of the globe. So they frame sundry theories to explain the thing to themselves. One theory is that the missionaries are secret political agents bent on gaining an influence over the Chinese and then swaying them to the advantage of their respective governments. Only of late have the natives come to realize that the strangers are not sent by their governments, but by religious groups. According to another theory, China is so excellent and renowned that the red haired barbarians come to live there for the mere pleasure of it. As for their self denying works of benevolence, these are supposed to be prompted by the desire to acquire merit.—Century.

Force Yourself to Be Well.

"Plant your feet firmly and squarely on the ground, throw back your shoulders, fold your arms and affirm in most emphatic terms that you are strong, healthy and well. Do this for a few minutes every evening, and, even if this is not how you actually feel, maintain by your physical and mental attitude that it is your condition, and you will soon find that it becomes so and that you are not really telling lies." This was the advice given by Dr. J. Stenson Hooker in a lecture on "Posturing and Posing For Health" at the simple life conference and exhibition in London. "It is wonderful to what extent our state of health can be altered in this way," Dr. Hooker added. "It stirs up the currents of feeling which act on the nerves. These act on the blood vessels, and thus the whole system is improved, and we become different beings."

He Was Well Off.

H. Clay Calhoun, testifying in an assault case, spoke of one Washington White as "well off."

"Now, witness," said the cross examining lawyer, "when you declare White to be well off, what do you mean? Is he worth $10,000?"

"No, sah. Oh, no, sah," said Calhoun.

"Is he worth $5,000?"

"No, sah. Mah, gracious, no!"

"Is he worth $1,000?"

"No, sah; he ain't wurf 17 cents."

"Then how is he well off?"

"Bekase, sah, his wife am an A No. 1 washlady and keeps de hull family in bangup style."—Exchange.

Nora Was Wise.

"Nora," censured the house butler, "if you must break the missus' vases, why don't you break the cheap ones instead of those expensive imported ones?"

"Oh, no," laughed Nora, with a gay flourish of her feather duster. "If I broke the cheap ones she would take them out of my wages."—Chicago News.

Surprising the Bullock.

In times of crisis and worry a kind word has been known to have surprisingly good results. The unexpectedness of such a word is perhaps the secret of its force. A late book, "On the Wool Track," backs the moral with an anecdote.

A team was working on the Broken Hill road, and a bullock—the Beelzebub of the team—had gone obstinate, and the coach was passing. The whip was swinging, and some apt remarks were just forming on the back of the teamster's tongue when he caught sight of a clerical hat on the front seat and just in time thought better of it. He coughed politely.

"Ahem—Strawberry," he said, "proceed!"

To his obvious astonishment Strawberry proceeded.

The Indian's Vision.

More or less wonderful accounts have from time to time been given of the powers of vision possessed by savage races. During a British anthropological expedition to the Torres strait the visual faculty of the natives was carefully tested, and from these tests the conclusion was reached that the excellence of vision shown by the savages has a psychological origin—that is to say, it arises from knowing what to look for. When the civilized man acquires familiarity with the environment he can see as far as they can. Thus the power of an Indian to tell the sex of a deer at such a distance that distinguishing features like antlers were invisible was found to rest upon his knowledge of the peculiar gait of the male deer.—Scientific American.

Bottles and Rags.

"Bottles and rags, bottles and rags!" called out a rag and bone man as he plied his calling.

"Why do you always put these words together?" asked a passerby.

"Because, madam," replied the man, courteously touching his hat, "wherever you find bottles you find rags!"—London Family Herald.

A RED HEIFER

It Was the Cause of an Absurd Mistake

By Clarissa Mackie

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"It certainly has our brand," persisted Gabriel, referring to the solitary red spot in the landscape.

"As well as three other brands," added Jim Lewis.

"Then why does the Widow Clancy lay claim to the critter?" demanded Jim Lewis scornfully.

"She says it's a 'stray,'" explained Harry Barry. "Seems her foreman told her that a critter that had as many as four different brands could rightly be claimed by anybody that found it."

"Who's the foreman?" asked Gabriel incredulously.

"Peter Henny."

"I'm wondering how he managed to fasten his thieving claws on the widder's money bags."

"She come out pore in health with a snug little sum that had been left to her by Clancy, who was in the building line somewheres east. I don't think she's a 'lunger' exactly, but Mrs. Clintock said she'd wore herself out over taking care of Clancy, who fell from the ninth story of a building he was putting up and lived ten weeks afterward! You can imagine what a tough specimen Clancy must have been, and you might know 'twould wear the buxomest kind of a woman to skin and bones to take care of him." The Crane puffed solemnly at his cigarette after this long explanation.

"How'd you come to know so much about the Widow Clancy?" demanded Harry Barry suspiciously.

"I talked with Mrs. Clintock about her. Seems Mrs. Boss she'd been over to call on the widder," said the Crane innocently.

"Anybody seen the widow yet?" inquired Jim.

There was silence for several seconds, and all eyes turned toward the Crane, who was staring out across the range.

"For the Lord's sake," he broke out irrelevantly, "the confounded critter's making off for Satan's gulch! Whoopee!"

His horse swung around to a quick touch, and before the others could draw breath he was dashing after the red spot, which was gradually becoming smaller. In another instant they were all after him.

The red heifer switched her tail saucily and capered joyously ahead of the pursuing cattlemen.

"Crane," panted Jim Lewis in that gentleman's ear when he had come abreast of him, "you're running the red heifer off the widder's range!"

"I'm not. The critter's running away, and I'm trying to catch her before she breaks her neck in the gulch," Crane tossed back over his shoulder.

The red heifer gamboled in the van, occasionally pausing to bellow back an impudent defiance to her pursuers. Gabriel explained in breathless shouts the different brands borne by the heifer as if all the Lone Bull men were not acquainted with the itinerant creature's marks of identity.

The red heifer had been the pet amusement of all the cattlemen in Pulardo county for six months past. Lately her sudden appearance among a herd was the signal for a stampede for the branding iron that would mark her for the time being as the possession of the ranch whose latest brand she bore. As these brands merely singed the thick hair on her body, they were obliterated as rapidly as her coat lengthened. Where she came from nobody could positively say, but it was believed that she was a wild cow which had joined some herd on the ranges unknown to the tenders.

Ever since the Three Star ranch, which adjoined the Lone Bull on the west, had been purchased by the widow of one Daniel Clancy, late of New York city, the red heifer had apparently staked a claim on the widow's property, for it mingled with her herds and seemed content to remain among the rather scrubby lot of cattle which Peter Henny had picked out for the newcomer.

The Lone Bull people had known very little about the Widow Clancy except that occasionally they had described a lone female figure galloping along the distant ridges on a buckskin pony. Mrs. Clintock had told them that the widow was like all widows—fair, fat, forty and fascinating. "Also red hair," the boss' wife had added with a twinkle in her eye.

"Not for mine!" Harry Barry had ejaculated, and the others had echoed his sentiment. As by one accord they all avoided the Three Star property and the well defined trail which had once marked the neighborliness between the ranches was now hidden with several months' growth of rank grass.

Now the spirit of mischief had suddenly possessed the solemn Crane, and he had deliberately led the pursuit after the red heifer that had been peacefully grazing on the widow's range for several weeks.

The spirited horses took fences whenever there were any, and it was not long before the red heifer grew to larger proportions in their sight until at last Crane's lariat went singing through the air and rippled into circles that straightened into one that was taut around the red heifer's neck. Crane had accomplished his task so skillfully that there was but the merest shock when the lariat tightened.

The red heifer plunged at the other end of the rope and bellowed angrily. The men laughed and drew together around the beast.

"I reckon you're going to turn her loose in the widder's corral," suggested Jim Lewis.

The captor smiled sardonically. "The red heifer goes to the branding iron tonight," he said emphatically. "I ain't had my hands on her for three months. If the Widder Clancy has the conscience to claim this critter with five brands to its credit, why, she's the widder's meat!"

"Ain't been ironed for some spell," remarked Gabriel, critically surveying the heifer.

"She'll go forth tomorrow with an unmistakable brand," said Crane significantly.

"Then you're not going to send it back to Mrs. Clancy?" inquired Harry Barry.

"Not until the Lone Bull mark is agin her once more." And Crane flapped the lines about his horse's neck and moved forward, the other straggling behind in friendly converse over divers matters of interest.

They did not hear the soft thud of small hoofs behind them, and it was not until a clear, bell-like voice sounded close at hand that they all turned and stared at a girl riding a buckskin pony.

She was unmistakably a pretty girl. She sat her horse with careless grace. Her hair was red, and her skin was pink and white, with a powdering of tiny freckles across her lovely nose. Tipped back on her mass of radiant hair was a wide soft black hat. Her riding skirt was black, and her shirt waist was crisp and white. From the peak of her hat to the tip of her little brown riding boot she was a picture to admire.

The Lone Bull boys gasped and whipped off their hats. Harry Barry maneuvered for a position close to the newcomer and got it.

She surveyed the startled group with soft gray eyes that wandered from one to another with friendly interest until at last they alighted on the mildly protesting form of the red heifer.

"What are you doing with my heifer?" she asked gently. She looked at Crane reproachfully.

"Your heifer?" repeated Crane stupidly.

"Of course it's mine. I saw you running it off my range. I am surprised! I am surprised!"

"This here is a lost critter," protested Crane wildly. "It belongs to whoever brands it. I saw it running away, and I went after it."

"It's my heifer," said the girl calmly. "You see, I'm Mrs. Clancy, and this heifer was grazing on my range when you drove her off."

Crane blushed violently and looked at his mates. They were all sitting open mouthed, wide eyed, absorbed in the pretty picture made by the charming widow—all save Harry Barry. That handsome youth had dismounted and was stroking the nose of the buckskin pony with an air of delightful intimacy.

"I beg your pardon, ma'am," stammered Crane at last. "It was something in the nature of a joke. This here red heifer has been branded by every outfit in the county"—

"Oh, no," smiled the widow sweetly. "I am sure you're mistaken because this red heifer only arrived two days ago. My cousin in Wyoming sent her to me as a birthday gift. If you will examine her you will see that she bears only two brands—the Double B of my cousin's ranch and my own, Three Stars."

Silently Crane slid to the ground and inspected the belligerent creature. When he looked up a sheepish grin widened his face.

"You're right, Mrs. Clancy, and I humbly beg your pardon. Might I ask what became of the red heifer that grazed with your bunch last week?"

The widow dimpled. "Oh, some of the men from the Circle C outfit ran her off my range last Saturday night," she said demurely.

"Then our work's cut out for us," said Crane grimly. "Them Circle C chaps has got two brands on her, and we can't let 'em have another one. Shall I drive the critter to the corral, ma'am, or turn her loose here?"

"Perhaps Mr. Barry will drive her to the corral," hesitated the widow Clancy with a fleeting smile at that youth, "after he has introduced me to my neighbors."

After a general introduction, which took place amid much laughter and merriment, the Lone Bull boys declared that the old trail that led to the Three Star ranch must not be allowed to remain grass grown.

"'Pears like I'd noticed it was being trod some," drawled Gabriel, with a side glance at Harry Barry.

Harry Barry smiled defiantly, and the widow blushed as she shook hands with all of them. "I hope you'll all help to keep that trail clear," she called back as she rode away with Harry.

"You bet we will," they sent back in lusty chorus.

As the two graceful figures went away, the red heifer prancing ahead of them, Gabriel fetched a long sigh.

"Him next, I suppose," he said. "First Jim, then Tim here, and now it's Harry Barry."

"Three Star ranch," mused Jim Lewis with all the sentiment becoming a newly wedded man. "The widow Clancy is certainly one star!"

"And it looks like Harry and the heifer are the other two stars," laughed Tim.

GOOD WORK

Done Daily in Bellefonte, Many Citizens Tell of it.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Bellefonte still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

James H. Rine, 239 W. High Street, Bellefonte, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly a wonderful kidney remedy. Ten years ago I first used them and at that time I told, in a public statement, of the benefit I had received. That statement still holds good. I have often urged my friends to try Doan's Kidney Pills and in every instance where my advice has been followed, relief has been received from kidney trouble. Whenever I hear anyone complaining of kidney disorders, I advise a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills, knowing that they will have a beneficial effect.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

College Student 41 Years

One of the happiest of the 1461 Columbia University students, at New York, who received degrees at the commencement exercises last Thursday was William Cullen Bryant Kemp, 65 years old. He was happy because the degree of bachelor of science was the fourth he has taken since he entered college 41 years ago.

Kemp has been practically sentenced to spend all of his life in college. Under the provisions of his father's will he gets an income of $25,000 a year as long as he remains a college student. If he leaves the University he forfeits this income, together with the principal. This is why Kemp has been a student since 1870. While he was a junior Kemp's father died. The elder Kemp had been greatly interested in his son's career as a student and earnestly desired that he should graduate with honors.

His will stipulated that if his son "left college" he should forfeit all share in the fortune left. While it was evident that the elder Kemp merely wanted his son to finish out his course, he did not express it in legal form. Mr Kemp is as enthusiastic as any young undergraduate and says he would not now be happy living anywhere else than in the college dormitory.

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded D. D. D., can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhestatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—We know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch.

Because—D. D. D. starts the cure at the foundation of the trouble.

Because—It cleanses, soothes and heals the skin.

Because—It enables Nature to repair the ravages of disease.

Because—The records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of the most serious cases show that D. D. D. is today recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema Cure.

Drop into our store today just to talk over your case with us.

The Visitor—Don't you play baseball here?

The Cowboy—No. We had to give it up. There wasn't excitement enough to go around.

The Visitor—Why, the game is full of excitement.

The Cowboy—Yep. But one man gets more than his share. After the first day's scrap everybody wanted to be umpire.

Both Concerned Teeth.

"What's the noise?" asked the visitor in the apartment house.

"Probably some one in the dentist's apartments on the floor below getting a tooth out."

"But this seems to come from the floor above."

"Ah! then probably the Popleys' baby getting a tooth in."

Time Saving—at Least.

Mother (to little girl with swollen face)—But, Mabel, you should be brave and have your tooth taken out.

Little Brother—Yes, I should, Mabel; it will be one less for you to clean in the morning.

F. S. Rexford, 615 New York Life Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., says: "I had a severe attack of a cold which settled in my back and kidneys and I was in great pain from my trouble. A friend recommended Foley Kidney Pills and I used two bottles of them and they have done me a word of good." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

"Had dyspepsia or indigestion for years. No appetite, and what I did eat distressed me terribly. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me."—J. H. Walker, Sunbury, Ohio.

Next Year's Battle.

Published statements that Col. Roosevelt will not consent to the use of his name for the nomination next year, but will declare in favor of a second term for President Taft, which latter is not confirmed, are especially interesting at this juncture, when the Democratic party is playing the most desperate and dangerous kind of politics. At no time recently has there been serious doubt of Mr. Taft's renomination, but for a long while back there has been grave question whether he can be re-elected. Throughout last year and during the earlier months of 1911 events pointed to a Democratic victory in the great battle of next year, and few prophets political would commit themselves publicly to the prediction that Mr. Taft could win.

All this, however, was predicated upon what has now turned out to be a mistaken belief in the capacity of the Democratic party and the misleading impression that at last that party had become united. Both these views are wrong. The Democracy is not united. Its leaders are pulling and hauling in different directions. What is still worse, the Democrats in control of the House of Representatives at Washington have not taken a single step indicative of constructive design or ability. Every move that has been made has had a direct tendency to unsettle business or destroy the sense of security and stability which is so strong a factor in maintaining prosperous conditions. Men may absolve the Democrats of that deliberate foolhardiness which would strike down production and trade—no party would be as silly as that—but the difficulty is that in their anxiety to court popular approval and create enthusiasm in their favor among the mass of voters they are sacrificing every consideration of prudence and safety to the expediency of the moment. Whatever can be done touching governmental affairs to discredit the Republican party is being done, regardless of consequences, only so it develops a political sensation. No matter how trivial the incident, if it be possible to besmirch a Republican official before he can have time to be heard, this is the acme of Democratic statemanship and reform. In House legislation affecting the tariff, not one line of which will become law, similar tactics are pursued. On the pretense of reducing the cost of living there is an attack on the protective tariff all along the line, the principal and immediate effect of which is to unsettle business in almost every direction. Add to this the continued agitation of trust complaints by sensational methods, with all the accompaniments of muckraking publicity, notwithstanding the effective manner in which the Department of Justice is discharging its duty, and here again we have the Democrats disturbing business and spreading discontent without compensating advantages to the community. Their whole program is to manufacture campaign material for their own benefit, let the cost to the country be ever so serious.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that prophecies as to 1912 are being revised. The common sense of workingmen and business men is bound to assert itself. The demand for next year will be for policies that will make for decently normal industrial and commercial opportunities. The politics that wrecks for partisan advantage, that tears down but never builds up, will be repudiated, as it ought to be.—Pittsburg Gazette Times.

Visit the Experiment Station.

The School of Agriculture and Experiment Station in the Pennsylvania State College is conducting a large number of experiments of very practical interest to farmers, stockmen and fruit-growers. It wants to maintain close relation with every resident of its own county in order that it may render any service within its power. Last year it invited the farmers of the county to pay a visit upon a fixed date and nearly one hundred people came. It renews the invitation this year, asking that the practical farmers of the county visit the college farms and grounds, Wednesday, June 21st, from 2 P. M. to 5 P. M. This probably is the best time of the year to observe the result of experimental work and a most cordial invitation is given to every farmer of the county to be present. The institution wants every one to know exactly what it is doing along practical lines. Do not fail to give this one afternoon to the one state institution that is making an earnest effort to solve some of the problems that confront the man who is trying to make the best possible winning in agriculture.

Hiked it to State College.

Philipsburg may well be proud of the showing made by the High School Cadets off that place who last Thursday hiked it to State College, where the boys gave a drill and were entertained by Captain Fry and the State College Cadets. The Philipsburg boys made the trip upon the invitation of Captain Fry and as a compliment to them for their display of pluck they were admitted free to the baseball game, track meet and other sports while at State College. The boys passed through Port Matilda about 11 o'clock in the morning and when they arrived at State College all were in first class condition. Those in the party included Sergeant Graffuis, David Campbell, Fred Hoffer, Richard, Hoffer Harold Haworth, Merrell Reed, William Walton, James Hugg, Malcom Pierce, E. Goldthrope, Chester McLarren, Walter Wythe, Charles Mills, Rem Dunsmore, Hoby Henderson, Donald Simler and George Mock, Jr. Jackson Goss and several others of the Winburne brigade were also in the party.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can

PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows:
"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips.

Another from Newark, N. J.
"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

Cut This Out

Free To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO. Chicago, Ill. with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hazel and Mrs. Roxy Smith, both of Bellefonte, the former District Deputy President of the Rebekahs, last Thursday night visited Philipsburg and installed the officers of the Sophia Philips Rebekah lodge, No. 391. The installation was witnessed by a large number of members and the occasion proved to be a most delightful one to all present. During the evening refreshment were served.

Any one contemplating buying a New Perfection Oil Stove should do so at once. The demand for this stove is so great that the manufacturers cannot supply promptly. Miller's Hardware Store Allegheny Street, Bellefonte, Pa., has just received a large shipment of stoves and glass door ovens and will be able to accommodate those who wish to buy at once.

Mr. and Mrs. James Huston, of Tyrone, on Tuesday celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Before her marriage Mrs. Huston was Miss Hannah E. Rosensteel. They were residents of Unionville at that time and the wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. John Toner, who was pastor of the Bellefonte Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Huston served during the Civil war as a member of Co. B, 148th Penna. Penna. Vols.

The glass door ovens that are sold in connection with the New Perfection Oil Stoves are a desirable feature over the old style ovens with closed door. The process of baking and roasting can be seen without the trouble of opening the door. Just the thing for many cakes that will not permit jarring from opening and closing the oven door while they are in the stove. Miller's Hardware Store, Allegheny Street, Bellefonte, Pa.

Charles S. Lord, editor of the Reynoldsville "Star," was a genial and welcome visitor at "The Republican" office on Saturday, last. Mr. Lord and his mother, Mrs. M. J. Lord, also of Reynoldsville, and Norman Matson and son and Walter Brown, of Brookville, comprised an automobile party out for a pleasure trip and with Nittany valley as one of their objective points. Years ago the Lords were residents nearby what now is Huston station and this was Mrs. Lord's first visit among old-time scenes and surrounding in twenty years.

J. C. Stine, of Tyrone, met with a peculiar accident on Sunday, last, while returning home in his automobile from Penn's Cave. He was accompanied by his wife and son. Mr. Stine was driving the car and when about one mile east of Warriors Mark a bug flew into his eye, causing him to lose control of the machine. The automobile swerved to one side and over an embankment, but strange to say the occupants of the car escaped serious injury. Mr. Stine's son was rather badly cut from broken glass but the two other occupants of the car were uninjured. The car was slightly damaged.

With this week's issue "The Republican" enters a number of new homes in and about Julian, residents from that section enrolled as subscribers including John Coakley, W. E. Fink, Jacob B. Moore, A. C. Herrington, W. O. Steele and J. F. Kline. We sincerely trust that "The Republican" will merit a cordial welcome every week in each home.

Gregg Post, No. 95, G. A. R. will march in a body to the Bellefonte Reformed church, on Sunday morning, next, where a special sermon for the occasion will be preached by Rev. Dr. A. M. Schmidt. It will be recalled that the Post planned attending the Reformed church on Sunday, May 18, and that the service was postponed owing to the prevalence of scarlet fever in town.

A little touch of the whip makes the mare go, and a little contribution of Uncle's Sam's currency helps make the printing press go. S. S. Newman, of near Port Matilda, who is one of our valued subscribers, demonstrated that he appreciates this for he recently advanced his subscription to "The Republican" another year. Were the writer not of Dutch-Welsh extraction and were it but St. Patrick's Day, we would be tempted to say: "Top o' the mornin', Mr. Newman."

Memorial services were held on Tuesday evening by Centre Lodge No. 163 and Crystal Springs Rebekah Lodge No. 26, I. O. O. F., in the lodge rooms, in Crider's stone building. An interesting program was rendered, the arrangements being in charge of a committee composed of David Miller, B. D. Tate and James Schofield. The memory of fifty-four deceased members was honored and recalled in beautiful tributes. Following the singing of the opening hymn, to the air of "America," Rev. S. H. Engler offered prayer. The speaker of the evening was D. F. Fortney. Music was rendered by a special choir and then followed a splendid recitation by Mrs. Jacob Hoy.

The Philadelphia "North America" on Sunday last published an Atlantic City despatch telling of the arrest at that place of a woman who gave the name of Miss Ray Miller, of Millheim, and a man by the name of William Mathis charged with passing worthless checks. The woman said that she conducted a chicken farm at Millheim. At the hearing, at which the woman was held under $1500 bail, Mathis testified that she was well able to care for all of worthless checks. Asked how many chickens were on the farm, Mathis, without a smile, replied: "Eighteen or twenty." The woman begged for the release of Mathis, explaining: "Since the beginning of creation it has been woman's fault that man has sinned."

It is our pleasure this week to place on our mailing list a number of new subscribers in and about Port Matilda. Those registered from that section of the county as new subscribers to "The Republican" include W. S. Cowher, Ellis Wickerman, Harry Cowher, James H. Wilson, John Reese, James Stine, John Kelley, Calvin Weston, J. B. Cowpher, J. S. Harpster, A. B. Williams, H. A. McKinney, C. W. Crain, G. G. Ammerman, J. W. Williams, A. L. Maguire and Walter Williams. We are naturally quite proud of the fact that "The Republican" becomes a regular visitor to so many additional homes of representative citizens of that part of the county and it is our determination to return the compliment by giving our readers the very best newspaper possible.

Our new subscribers this week include Mary M. Brown, of Youngwood, Pa.

Mrs. Edward Richards yesterday entertained a number of the little children of East Linn Street, from four to six in the afternoon.

Walton Mitchell, of Pittsburg, was but one of many old State College grads to return for the commencement exercises this week.

Mrs. Sarah Satterfield, accompanied by her niece, Miss Hester McGinley, departed on Tuesday for an extended visit to California.

Miss Bella Johnson and Robert Tressler, of Bellefonte, were delegates to the Epworth League convention, at Altoona, on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Yesterday was the fourth birthday anniversary of John Curtin, Jr., and his mother invited in a number of other little children in honor of the occasion.

The baccalaureate sermon to the gradnating class of the Bellefonte High School will be delivered by Rev. Dr. A. M. Schmidt in the Reformed church, at 7.30 o'clock, on Sunday evening, next.

We this week enrolled as a new subscriber Mrs. William G. Weston, of Trafford City, Pa., who will be recalled by Centre County friends as a member of the well known Woodring family, at Port Matilda.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cook departed on Tuesday for New York, from which place they will sail on Saturday for Europe, expecting to be gone several months. They will be accompanied by their daughter, Miss Margaret Cook.

On account of the illness of Rev. E. H. Yocum, pastor of the Methodist Church, the sermon will be preached on Sunday, next, by Rev. A. G. Simmons, a student at Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport. All are cordially invited to be present and hear him.

James B. Barger, yard-master for the Pennsylvania Railroad in New York City, accompanied by his wife and son, Ermire, spent Thursday of last week with relatives and friends in Bellefonte. Mr. Barger is an old-time Bellefonte boy who is making good in New York.

Lee Derstine, one of the boys who helps W. V. Larimer "make the mare go" at the Palace Livery, last week caught a trout below the falls, back of the livery stable, that measured 22 inches and weighed 3 pounds dressed. Joe Thal on the same day caught an 18-inch trout nearby the Yeager Swing Factory.

Mrs. William Rishel and two children, of Swissvale, and Mrs. Arthur Pennington and two children, of Arlington, Pa., are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kreamer, on Quaker Hill. Mr. Kreamer has been quite ill for some time and his condition is such as to occasion no little anxiety among the family and friends.

We are informed that the First National Nurseries, of Rochester, N. Y., desire a lady or gentleman representative in this section They are well rated in the commercial reports and state that they have one thousand acres in growing stock. Any one out of employment would do well to write them at once and enclose a copy of this notice. 6

Joseph D. Mitchell, a former Bellefonte boy who is coming into prominence as an iron and steel operator, located at the Burnham mills, is this week visiting old home friends. It is a good many years since Joe moved away but as with all of the Mitchells time has little effect on him and he looks about the same as when he was one of the boys about town.

Constable John Snyder, of State College, has recently been enforcing the stern hand of the law on automobilists exceeding the speed limit. So active has Constable Snyder become of late that autoists are afraid to go through State College faster than a snail's pace. On Sunday last Constable Snyder held up the automobiles of President Sparks and Wilbur Leitzel and also that of Mr. Lamada, of Williamsport. President Sparks was not in his car at the time, the machine being in the hands of his chauffeur. Burgess Foster imposed a fine of $10 and costs on the owners of all three cars.

A double-wedding in which the principals were from this section was performed at Harrisburg yesterday afternoon, Rev. George Israel Brown officiating. The contracting parties were William Straub and Miss Nellie Solt and Ellif Bierly and Miss Sarah Symmonds. The two young couples left Bellefonte in an automobile at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, arriving at Lock Haven in time to catch the 7:15 train for Harrisburg. The double-wedding ceremony was performed there at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Both brides and also Mr. Straub are residents of Bellefonte. Mr. Bierly is a resident of Milesburg.

Rain interfered with the State College vs. Bucknell baseball game on Saturday, last. The rivalry between the two clubs and the fact that they were well matched gave everybody good reason to anticipate the best baseball game of the season on Beaver Field. In the fourth inning, however, when the score stood 2—1, in favor of Bucknell, a heavy rain storm ended the contest on short notice. At the annual track meet Colgate defeated State College, 66—38. On Tuesday afternoon the varsity defeated the alumni in a rattling good baseball game, the score being 2—0. The Sophomores defeated the Freshmen in the annual soccer contest, the score being 1 - 0.

Chang Yin Tang, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, which happens to be the title of the Chinese Minister to the United States, accompanied by members of his family, a retinue of servants, etc., passed through Bellefonte on Monday morning, enroute from Washington to State College. The party traveled from Tyrone in the private car of Superintendent Johnson, and at Bellefonte were switched onto the tracks of the Bellefonte Central Railroad, where General Manager F. H. Thomas took charge of the distinguished visitors. The Chinese Minister and his party were expected to arrive at Tyrone on Saturday and several Bellefonte automobiles were in readiness to transport them over-land to State College, but at the last minute a telegram was received explaining that they would not reach Tyrone before Sunday or Monday.

STEVENS & FRY,
LAWYERS,

Boone, Iowa, Nov. 5, 1907.

Hon. Sidney A. Foster,
Sec. R. U. M. L. Ins. CO.,
Des Moines, Ia.

My Dear Sir:

I have your favor of November 2nd stating that my policy for $1,000 issued by your company is now full paid and I may take a full paid participating policy for the amount of my original policy, $1,000, and receive in cash the surplus, $428, or take guaranteed cash value, $575, and in addition cash surplus, $428, making a total cash value of $1,003, or I may take a full paid policy for $1650. I have paid in premium $735.-20, leaving me a profit of $267.80.

This is very satisfactory to me, and fully justifies the confidence which I had twenty years ago in the then new Iowa company organized by Iowa men, and it is a pleasure to know that the same men continue to manage its affairs. I hereby elect to take a full participating policy and my cash surplus, believing that the participating policy payable at my death is a good investment and absolutely safe.

Hoping for your continued success, I am,
Yours respectfully,

J.L.S.--A.M. JOHN L. STEVENS.
